laé-ti, tri-um-phán-tes.

Vení-te, vení-te in Béthlé-em.

As I write, on this unusual late November day, leaves still cling healthily to campus trees; Gasson Tower is lit with a warm sun; students hurry between classes in shirtsleeves. But a New England winter waits anxiously behind the wind — and with it, the joyous celebration of Christmas.

I express to each member of the Boston College community — students and faculty, parents, alumni and friends, sincere best wishes for abundant blessings at this Holy Season.

May each of us sense new confidence in the dignity of mind and heart that is ours, because God assumed our human frame. May His Truth enlighten our uncertain world. And may that Truth and ennobling of our persons be for each of us a source of energetic peace.

New trustees assume office

Joseph F. Abely Jr.

Thomas J. Gibbons, SJ.

John W. Padberg, SJ.

Three new members of the University Board of Trustees assumed office at the board's meeting in October. The new trustees are: Joseph F. Abely Jr., '50, vice-chairman of General Foods Corp.; Thomas J. Gibbons, SJ, '53, G'54, principal of Boston College High School; and John W. Padberg, SJ, president of Weston School of Theology.

Elected chairman of the board was former vice-chairman Thomas J. Galligan Jr., '41, president of Boston Edison Co. Joseph F. Cotter, '49, senior vice-president and controller of ITT Sheraton Corp. of America, was elected vice-chairman, and William J. O'Halloran, SJ, '51, G'52, was chosen secretary.

In addition, five trustees were reappointed to terms as board members. They are Joseph R. Fahey, SJ, '60, G'61, Mary M. Lai, John Lowell, Joseph L. Shea, SJ, '40, G'46, and Cotter.

Joseph F. Abely Jr., a native of Boston, received his bachelor of science degree, cum laude, from the University in 1950. In 1952, he received a masters in business administration from the Harvard Business School and added a law degree from Harvard four years later.

He was appointed vice-chairman of General Foods Corp. last year after more than 10 years of progressively more responsible positions at that company. Named assistant controller in 1966, Abely served as controller (1967-69), vice-president (1969-70), president of the institutional food service division (1970-71), and executive vice-president, chief financial officer and director (1971-74).

A trustee of Fairfield University, Abely lives with his wife and two children in Darien, Conn.

Thomas J. Gibbons, SJ., also a native Bostonian, received his bachelor of arts, master of arts and theological degrees from this University and a master of science degree from Fordham University.

Entering the Society of Jesus in 1947, Fr. Gibbons spent several years at the Society's Baghdad College in Iraq before his ordination in 1960. In 1965, he returned to Baghdad to serve as chairman of the physics department. Fr. Gibbons returned to this country to teach physics at Fairfield (Conn.) Preparatory School from 1969 to 1970, when he was appointed principal of Bishop Connolly High School in Fall River, Mass. Since August of this year, he has served as principal of BC High.

Fr. Gibbons is a consultant to the Jesuit Provincial of New England, a member of the board of directors of the Society of Jesus of New England, a member of the Citizens Scholarship Foundation of Greater Fall River and chairman of its awards committee, a member of People Incorporated of Fall River and a trustee of College of the Holy Cross.

John W. Padberg, SJ., is a native of St. Louis, Mo., and received undergraduate and graduate degrees at St. Louis University. He later earned an STL at the divinity school of St. Mary's College and a doctorate from Harvard. Other postgraduate work was conducted at Institute Catholique in Paris and at Les Fontaines in Chantilles.

Fr. Padberg served as dean of the graduate school at St. Louis from 1964 to 1973, when he became a research associate in a project of the Jesuit Conference. Earlier this year, he assumed the presidency of Weston School of Theology.

Recipient of a Harvard Traveling Fellowship in 1962, Fr. Padberg also received a Danforth Foundation award for distinguished teaching in 1969.

Rising costs force tuition increase

Undergraduate tuition at the University will be increased to $3,175 for the 1976-77 academic year, under plans approved by the Board of Trustees. Tuition this year is $2,950.

Increases will also be made in tuition rates for graduate programs and in room and board rates (see chart below).

Rising costs on all fronts caused by continuing high inflation rates made the increases necessary, according to a statement prepared for the trustees by Frank B. Campanella, executive vice-president.

The rate increases are in the context of a five-year financial plan drawn up by the University based on projections of student enrollment and other factors critical to University expenditures and income. The rate increases represent the least amount necessary to maintain a balanced University budget.

"Past and projected increases in tuition at Boston College," Campanella's statement said, "have not only been less than the related increase in the rate of inflation, but they have also tended to lag tuition increases in sister institutions."

Campanella pointed out two areas where the University faces extraordinary cost increases in the immediate future:

— Still higher energy costs in spite of significant reductions in University-wide consumption of all forms of energy.

— Significantly higher library budgets for immediate repairs to Bapst Library and for restoration of book budgets that have suffered disproportionately because of inflation.

Fr. Keleher, 20th BC president, dies

William L. Keleher, SJ, 20th president of Boston College, died Oct. 27 after a long illness. He was 69.

President from 1945 to 1951, Fr. Keleher presided over the University's emergence as a growing, national institution in the years immediately after World War II. In the years following his presidency, he served at College of the Holy Cross as a professor, administrator and trustee.

Chief concelebrants of the funeral Mass for Fr. Keleher at St. Ignatius Church on campus were: Francis J. Nicholson, SJ, rector of the Boston College Jesuit Community; Leo McGovern, SJ, vice-provincial of the New England Province of the Society of Jesus; and Fr. Monan. The Homily was delivered by Leo P. O'Keefe, SJ, of BC, one of Fr. Keleher's dear friends, and absolution was given by Most Rev. John J. McElaney, former Archbishop of Kingston, Jamaica.

Burial was at Campion Center at Weston College.

Fr. Keleher became president of this University just as the institution embarked on an ambitious expansion program that was to accommodate thousands of veterans returning from service in the war. When he assumed the position in 1945, there were 650 undergraduates enrolled, a number which grew to 4,100 in 1947, including 3,000 veterans.

In the spring of 1946, Fr. Keleher launched a $1 million capital fund campaign enlisting the aid of alumni and numerous businesses in the Greater Boston area.

An immediate use for the funds raised was construction of a new building for the rapidly growing College of Business Administration.

The University's shift from its status as a day school to a new emphasis on resident students began during Fr. Keleher's term in office. Surplus government barracks were brought in to house the large number of GI's from distant areas who were unable to obtain local housing.

Fr. Keleher wishes worker well before the cross atop Lyons Hall is hoisted up in 1951. At left is John A. Valpe, now US ambassador to Italy and former Massachusetts governor and then president of Valpe Construction Co., which worked on Lyons.

In addition to the campus buildings constructed during his term, Fr. Keleher's administration had a profound impact on the course of the University. In his History of Boston College, David R. Dunigan, SJ, said of Fr. Keleher:

"Success was now posing as many problems as opposition and poverty had in the early years of the institution's life, and the burdens which rested on Fr. Keleher were, in essence, kindred to those which bore down the shoulders of John McElroy when he returned from the wars of a century before to found a college in Boston."

Fulton Hall, Lyons Hall and a central service building with facilities to heat future buildings were all erected while Fr. Keleher was president.

He founded the School of Nursing in 1947, laid the groundwork for the School of Education which opened soon after he left office, and made plans to move the Thomas More Law School from its downtown quarters to a new building on the Chestnut Hill campus.

Fr. Keleher also supervised the purchase of reservoir property from the Metropolitan District Commission. This site now provides space for thousands of resident student housing units and the many facilities of the University's athletic programs, including Roberts Center, Alumni Stadium and McHugh Forum.

William Lane Keleher was born Jan. 27, 1906, in Woburn, Mass. He was graduated from Boston College High School and Holy Cross College in the Class of 1926. On Sept. 7 of the same year, he entered the Society of Jesus at Shadowbrook.

Staff in management seminars

Fr. Monan lectures to participants in the first of a series of management development seminars for University staff and faculty with administrative responsibilities. The seminars are held at MIT's Endicott House in Dedham.

Selected members of the University administrative staff and faculty with administrative responsibility are now participating in the first of several programs of formal management education offered by the University.

The objective of the programs is to strengthen the University by improving current and future management performance through increased knowledge and understanding of BC's role as a Jesuit university and development of administrative skills.

For its faculty, the programs will draw on University personnel and outside guests to serve as lecturers, case instructors, group discussion leaders, panelists and resource persons. Among

After completing his course of studies at Shadowbrook and later at Weston College, Fr. Keleher became a teaching fellow in chemistry in 1932 at Holy Cross, where he received his master's degree in chemistry.

After further studies at Weston, Fr. Keleher was ordained to the priesthood in June, 1937.

At the termination of further theological studies he was appointed assistant to the Provincial of the New England Province of the Society of Jesus in 1939 and served in the position for three years. He became master of novices at Shadowbrook until his appointment as president of Boston College in 1945.

Fr. Keleher leaves a sister, Mrs. John R. Barry of West Roxbury, and three brothers, Paul C., M.D., of Winchester, Edmund P. of Stoneham and George L. of Belmont, all of Massachusetts.

The BC 200 to be named

Nominations for recipients of the University's 200 Awards of Excellence to be presented in early 1976 are being processed by a committee chaired by Law School Dean Richard Huber.

The recipients will include alumni, faculty and staff who have played a significant role in the development of the University. The awards are part of the University celebration of the Bicentennial.

Various departments and offices in the University submitted nominations in early November. Presentations of the awards will be made in ceremonies arranged and scheduled by each of the nominating organizations.

Recipients will be honored as a group at a reception hosted by Fr. Monan in the spring.

The award itself is a medallion designed by renowned artist Allison Macomber of the University faculty and will depict the work of Sebastian Rasle, SJ, among the Abenaki Indian of North America in the 17th century.

Admin offices to former Law site

The former site of the Law School now relocated to the Newton Campus will become a permanent administration building when a number of University offices, now located in Gasson Hall, are moved out to make way for major renovation of Gasson.

Moving into the former Law School building will be the office of the Financial Vice-President, Financial Systems and Control, Contracts and Grants, Controller, Office of Vice-President and Treasurer, Special Fund Personnel, Budget, Payroll and Student Accounts.

The building, located at the extreme northeastern end of the campus, will also contain student library and study facilities to accommodate the increasing resident student population on the Lower Campus.

The first phase of a two-stage renovation of the interior of Gasson Hall was scheduled to begin in December. Phase I, which is expected to take about eight months, will include new plumbing, fire safety measures, installation of elevators and relocation of stairways to the corners of the building to provide easier egress.

Offices not scheduled to relocate to the former Law School Building, including Admissions, will be moved about within Gasson as construction needs dictate.

Phase II, which will be the stage in which future occupants and uses of the campus' first building are determined, will be directed by the Gasson Hall Building Committee. This committee, chaired by Executive Vice-President Frank Campanella, has among its objectives the restoration of large rooms adjacent to the Rotunda that were originally used as an assembly room and library and of the Fulton Debating Room.

The cost of the renovation will be defrayed by the more than $100,000 pledged by members of the Class of 1950 for their Silver Anniversary last year.

Ban lifted

A ban on federal funds to the University for the education of military students, enacted after BC dropped the Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) during the Vietnam war protest years, has been lifted by the Pentagon.

BC was one of 14 universities affected by the ban. Most of the schools are located in the Northeast and include Boston University, Brown, Harvard, Dartmouth, Yale and Tufts.

BC history professors Thomas O'Connor, second from right, and Alan Ragers, right, partake of a colonial-style meal during a special television special commemorating the Bicentennial. The two professors discussed events of the 'doy' — April 18, 1775 — with other historians while enjoying the authentic repast. The WNAC-TV (Boston) program, aired last spring, won a silver medal at the International Film and Television Festival in November.

Middle-income is not low-priority

Financial assistance is available to middle-income students, an important part of the BC community, and the University wants to help them get it.

Much attention has been given to the increasing difficulties with which the middle-income family lives in an economy of rising costs and declining real income due to inflation. One feature of the present middle-income dilemma is the financing of their children's education at colleges and universities that have been required to raise tuition and other costs to deal with similar economic problems.

There has been a growing impression among many persons that middle-income families, those with total incomes between $12,000 and $20,000 annually, are shut off from the programs and resources used to assist lower-income families in providing for their children's education. Actually, there are funds available to such families, and personnel at Boston College are trained to acquaint families of students with methods to secure these funds.

The goal of admissions and financial aid personnel at the University is to assist each family of a student admitted to BC, which can demonstrate a need, in securing a financial assistance package that will permit that youngster to attend without an unacceptable financial burden on his or her family.

With resources available from the federal government and within the University, such as the Annual Fund, and with information on how families can obtain assistance from other programs, BC puts together a package tailored to a family's needs and resources.

Nearly 6,000 of the approximately 9,000 undergraduate students at the University receive some sort of financial assistance, be it grant, loan or employment. More than $6.5 million in aid was provided this year to undergraduates.

The most important single element in the consideration of a student's application for financial assistance is need. And the University's financial aid personnel are most aware that middle-income families, in many cases, cannot handle the full cost alone.

To determine what amount an individual middle-income family can afford, BC utilizes the College Scholarship Service (CSS) of the College Entrance Examination Board. Upon receipt of a Parents Confidential Statement (a complete copy of the most recent federal income tax return is also requested by BC), the CSS calculates the amount a family can afford per year, based on income, expenses, assets and other family financial responsibilities.

First of all, CSS subtracts various expense obligations from the gross family income. These include medical and dental, federal income tax, state and other taxes, Social Security taxes, a house-keeping allowances set by the CSS at up to $1,500 and an additional allowance based on family size.

Next, the family's assets are determined. These include equity in the family home, equity in other real estate, savings and checking accounts, and stocks. From the total assets are subtracted major debts (except payments on autos or appliances) such as medical bills outstanding from previous years. Another deduction is a retirement allowance based on the age of the parents.

Total deductions are subtracted from total assets and the resulting figure is multiplied by 12 percent (under a formula devised by CSS) to obtain "income supplement from assets." This figure is added to available income to come up with a more realistic income total.

A further deduction in available income is made if other family members are attending college.

The final figure would be that portion of total available income that the family would be expected to provide toward the cost of educating their child for a year. Each year, thereafter, parents are expected to furnish the same information and similar calculations are made.

If, for example, CSS determined that a family could afford to contribute

Dr. J. Stephen Collins

$1,000 that year for their child's education, the family, student and school would work together to form a package of financial aid combining scholarship or grant and some self-help (loan and/or employment) to make up the difference between family contribution and education costs.

A hypothetical example of the process and resources involved in designing a financial aid package for an average student from a middle-income family was provided by Dr. J. Stephen Collins, BC director of financial aid.

"Let's say, for example, that the family's total income is $17,000. The student is just graduating from high school and entering his or her first year of college. Their assets include a $28,000 home and stocks, bonds and savings totalling $6,000. And let's assume they have average medical expenses and the like."

"The parents' contribution would be expected to be about $850. Adding the contribution made by the student from summer earnings or previous savings the combined amount would be approximately $1,500."

"Assuming total expenses for the student would amount to between $5,500 and $6,000, the student would need an additional $4,000-$4,500. A likely package for that student might include a BC grant or scholarship of $500-$1,000, a federal loan of $1,000, and a work-study job, with other options including low-interest bank loans and scholarships from outside organizations such as the Rotary Club or Parent-Teachers Association."

Here are some details on the various resources available:

Boston College grants and scholarships

The University awards more than $1

(NDSL) and Guaranteed Student Loans.

NDSL is a loan from federal funds made by the school to students, based on need. An undergraduate may borrow up to $5,000 over four years (a $10,000 total if graduate school is included) at three percent interest.

Through the Guaranteed Student Loan Program (also called the Guaranteed Insured Loan Program, Higher Education Loan Program (HELP) or Bank Loan Program), students can make separate application to a bank, credit union or other lending institution for up to $2,500 a year (to a maximum of $7,500 for four years of undergraduate study and $10,000 for undergraduate and graduate education combined) at seven to eight percent interest.

sition (up to 40 hours per week during summer and other vacations) on campus or in one of many public and private non-profit agencies off campus. The federal government pays 80 percent of the student's salary and the employing agency takes care of the remaining 20 percent.

Tuition increases made necessary by the economy do not automatically make it more difficult for students requiring financial aid to attend the University.

"Most of our money for grants and scholarships comes from operating income, that is, the funds collected from tuition," said Collins. "Any percentage increase in tuition, therefore, is matched by a percentage increase in BC's own financial aid."

The policy of funding University scholarships from operating and gift income is unlike the situation at several other universities that draw on sizeable endowment incomes to fund scholarships. A substantial increase in the University's small endowment would be a welcome addition to the BC financial aid picture.

Working without a major endowment resource, the University has rendered assistance to its students through its own resources and by aggressive work in obtaining federal funds. Since the mid-'60's, and particularly in the last four or five years, the University has been consistently well-funded by the federal government. With the middle-income student such an important part of the Boston College community, it's nice to know such funds are available.

The single most important element in the consideration of a student's application for financial aid is need.

million annually in grants and scholarships to its students. Last year, 48 percent of scholarship recipients were from families with incomes greater than $12,000 annually, and 15 percent of those students were from families with incomes over $18,000. These awards are made possible partially through gifts received by the BC Annual Fund.

Federal grants

There are two types of federal grants for which a student may apply. One is the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG), which ranges from $200 to $1,400, based entirely on need. A separate application for this loan should be filed directly with the government; it is not handled through the University. Children of families in the $10,000-$12,000 income range or below are most likely to receive this grant. Students in a high-need situation, however, such as being from a middle-income family with a large number of children, could also qualify.

The second type of federal grant is the Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant (SEOG), ranging from $200 to $1,500, with a four-year maximum of $4,000 and based entirely on need. Regulations require that this grant be utilized as a last resort after other sources have been tried.

Student loans

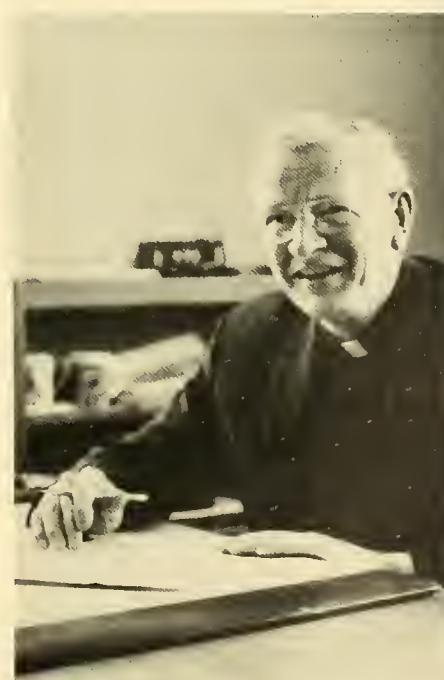

There are two major types of loans involved in students' financial aid packages — National Direct Student Loans graduate education combined) at seven to eight percent interest.

Loans to students in the School of Nursing, made by the school from federal funds, enable those students to borrow up to $2,500 a year at three percent interest.

It's not business as usual

by Vic Schlitzer

The School of Management is using innovative methods to relate the principles of business education to the 'real world'

Seniors in Prof. John Diffenbach's administrative policy course in the School of Management recently were given a quite unique assignment. The students were hired as consultants for $5,000 to help a small consumer goods company deal with its organizational problems. They had visited personally with a number of key management and production people in the firm and together in class had debated the formulation of a policy that would best serve the company's goals and needs.

Well, that's how it was in theory, anyway. Actually, the students weren't paid anything and the company did not actually receive their suggestions. But the students in Prof. Diffenbach's class and in seven other administrative policy sections had seen a special 90-minute documentary film that dealt with the problems and, importantly, the personalities at Dansk Designs, Inc., which manufactures and markets artistic "items for the top of the table" such as china, glass, linens, wooden accessories, flatware and cookware.

This one example of efforts to relate strongly the studying of principles of business to the pragmatic realities of actual organizations is indicative of the growing emphasis in the School of Management on combining the world outside academe with classroom enterprise.

The use of an audio-visual presentation such as the film on Dansk Designs to augment case studies is just one of several innovations and events that highlight the invigorating atmosphere at Fulton Hall. Among the others are:

— The presence of an "executive-in-residence;"

— Establishment of the SOM Advisory Council by Dean Albert J. Kelley;

— Accreditation of the Graduate School of Management last April;

— A first-time visit by representatives of Chase Manhattan Bank wanting to learn more about the school;

— Establishment of a Management Development Program in which faculty offer expertise in seminars to outside organizations and firms;

— The experience students are gaining working for and with the Small Business Administration in assisting local firms;

— The ongoing impact of the Boston College Citizens Seminars on metropolitan information-sharing and planning; and — The decision by the University to expand enrollment at SOM in the next five years more than any other school.

Of particular note is the concern that management studies be relevant to the realities and management needs of actual organizations; the Dansk Design film and case being indicative. Where business students once memorized principles of management straight from textbooks, they now focus on the application of contemporary management concepts to real world cases.

The Dansk case featured a situation in which a company was seeking to move from an "entrepreneurial mode" of management to a more "professional" system. The company's success was strongly dependent upon the creative personalities of the designers and so, in considering recommended strategies, the students were able to appreciate, through film, the company's people, their personal values, styles, temperaments, as well as individual roles and inter-relationships. In the final analysis, this proved to be an enlightening experience for the many students who have yet to face a "real world" business situation.

Headed by Dr. Walter Klein, the administrative sciences department, which is responsible for "policy" courses, is continually pursuing innovative approaches in these and other departmental areas. To help in this pursuit, Prof. Diffenbach voiced the hope that BC alumni in various managerial positions might offer suggestions, advice or situational examples that would further help bring a "real world" flavor to "administrative policy" and other programs in the school.

Recently, Dr. Klein worked closely with representatives of the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York to arrange a visit to campus. Three bank executives, the vice-president and director of personnel, the director of management planning and the manager of manpower planning, met with faculty and students to exchange information and sat in on policy and operations classes. According to Dr. Klein, the executives were particularly interested in discussing the need for operations managers in the field and talking to prospective candidates for such positions. A similar session is planned for next year.

To promote further a contemporary and relevant perspective in SOM activities, Dean Kelley has established the SOM Advisory Council, composed of prominent business leaders, to help specifically in planning for the future.

Kelley said the council had been of great assistance in preparing for the accreditation visit and that council members continually stress the importance to SOM of retaining its association and familiarity with the practical world of business.

"The council and its various members have expressed concern that many business schools are developing a gap between what they teach and what is actually practiced in management. To achieve this objective they are willing to help us in many ways, from making their organizations available for case studies, to hiring faculty members for periods up to a year within their corporations," Kelley said.

Another visible manifestation of the pragmatic approach to management studies taking place in SOM is the attainment of Philip Hamilton, retired chairman of the Dennison Manufacturing Co., as "executive-in-residence." Hamilton, who continues to hold several important directorships, will be teaching a course each semester and will be working closely with faculty and students to offer his practical business viewpoint, gained through many years of experience.

Dean Kelley is further fostering this marriage of scholarship and pragmatism by encouraging faculty members to consult with firms and organizations and he is assisting them in obtaining appropriate assignments.

"I believe the best kind of professional educator, and many other professional schools in various fields have proven this, is the one who combines sound research, teaching and practical experience in his or her field of professional expertise," Kelley said.

Additionally, SOM has inaugurated "management development seminars," and has plans to expand the concept. The first such seminar was held in August with Charles S. Draper Laboratory, Inc. of Cambridge. Over two days, during which the Draper Lab executives lived at BC, SOM professors dealt with a variety of topics of particular concern to this technology-oriented enterprise.

The Dean and certain faculty are also working on a study of program management education for the National Aeronautical and Space Administration (NASA). Dean Kelley noted that the management development seminars have not only an excellent market potential and respond to a real need, but bring executives on campus to "rub elbows" with the SOM faculty to the mutual benefit of both groups.

Over the course of the academic year, a number of institutes, academies and organizations in SOM, provide an important service to the student body by continually bringing guest experts and executives from a variety of career fields to campus to offer advice and insights about the realities and opportunities now characterizing their respective areas.

Finally, applications for both the graduate and undergraduate divisions of SOM have taken a "quantum jump" in the last year, according to Dean Kelley, increasing approximately 35 percent.

These and other factors are graphic manifestations of SOM's efforts to keep pace with the growing demand for capable managers in a complex and changing society. In particular, the importance of a contemporary perspective and an understanding of how the art of management is actually practiced in many diverse types of organizations, will be the object of continuing scrutiny as the School of Management develops.

Looking to the future, Dean Kelley noted, "I see a distinctive niche available to us in the future, that of being a truly 'professional' school. We must not only be at the forefront, we must be in context."

In this corner... stands a student

The rigors of professional boxing and challenges of study have made Jackie Smith, '76, a winner.

by Bill McDonald

The entrance to Vinnie's Athletic Gym is squeezed between the Genova Cafe and Sciore's Barber Shop on Crescent Street in downtown Brockton, Mass. Each day, in late afternoon, young men walk up the dank stairway and through the dark hallways of the otherwise-abandoned second floor to a one-room gym. There they sweat and hurt in preparing for what owner Vinnie Vecchione continually refers to as "the fight game."

Most persons would probably not consider boxing a "game." It hurts too much. And it's not a life into which many young men enter. The financial rewards are negligible for all but a very few and the prospects for a career are dim and even a little frightening.

Boxing, however, lives in Brockton. Maybe it has something to do with native son Rocky Marciano, former undefeated heavyweight champion, but Brockton is the home of nearly every ranked boxer from New England. The young men who frequent Vinnie's Gym are tough kids who are channeling a natural aggressiveness in a very intense, very personal effort.

If the young men who work out at Vinnie's are unusual, there is one among them who stands out even more.

Jackie Smith is the best fighter at Vinnie's. He is a professional, ranked fifth in the United States in his junior middleweight division with a 20-2 record, and a former New England champion in the division. But his ranking is not all that makes him stand out among the unusual. Jackie Smith is also a senior marketing major in Boston College's School of Management who says he hopes to earn a master's in business administration in the future.

Smith has been boxing since he was 15, when he sought out conditioning training that would enable him to use his size (5-10, 154) more effectively in hockey. The personal aspect of boxing appealed to Smith, who must also have been seeking an outlet for what turned out to be a lot of determination.

"Jackie does not have a lot of natural boxing ability," said Vinnie, a former boxer in his 30s who is Smith's manager, adviser and friend. "His success relies on dedication and sacrifice."

After four years as an amateur, during which time he won the New England AAU title and more than 80 percent of his 45 bouts, on occasion having to fight two or three times a night, Smith turned professional in the summer of 1973. Since then he has steadily climbed up the rankings despite what some "fight game" persons consider the drawback of a full college workload.

Smith took the first semester this year off from training for fights. He still goes to Vinnie's nearly every day to keep in shape, but the focus of his efforts have been on the "heavy bag" of case studies, the "speed bag" of marketing analysis and some sparring rounds with a calculator.

The short-range future is a question mark for Smith, both in terms of what he thinks will happen and what he wants to happen. One part of him desires an opportunity in the business world that will take advantage of the skill and effort he's applied to his studies; another part remembers the hours of physical pain and extreme mental effort that characterized his training for boxing and demands that the competitive nature be fed.

Smith hasn't always had his doubts. Only a short time ago, as a confident young man who had seen his determination vault him over many others toward the top of the rankings, he might have seen only boxing on his horizon. The doubts came with a loss and the realization of what that loss meant.

In September of this year, Smith was knocked out in the seventh round of a preliminary bout to the Hartford, Conn., telecast of the Ali-Frazier "thrilla from Manila" and lost his New England crown. He had lost only one round in the fight, according to each of the judges, but Smith never saw the knock-out punch.

It wasn't the loss itself but the awareness that determination and sacrifice could not prevent a lucky punch and possible serious injury that put perspective back into Smith's vision of his future.

"I honestly thought I couldn't get knocked out," Smith said. "[The loss] has put a big question mark in my career. I took it as kind of a hint. I don't want to spend my life walking on my heels just because of fighting.

"One part of me wants to keep on going because I know I could beat that guy. Another part of me says, 'Be careful.'

Whatever choice Jackie Smith makes as to what he's going to do for the next few years, he and Vinnie believe that both his education and his boxing have made him better able to handle the challenges.

"To me," Vecchione said, "the fight game is a knockdown, drag-out affair just like life. When you're born is when they ring the bell for the main event.

"Jackie Smith wouldn't be where he is today, except for boxing. He has that inner strength that boxing gives you. He's gotten stronger from the little battles he's won, and lost, in the ring.

"He'll be enriched by the inspiration boxing's given him — to be a success."

Smith also feels boxing has been valuable to him.

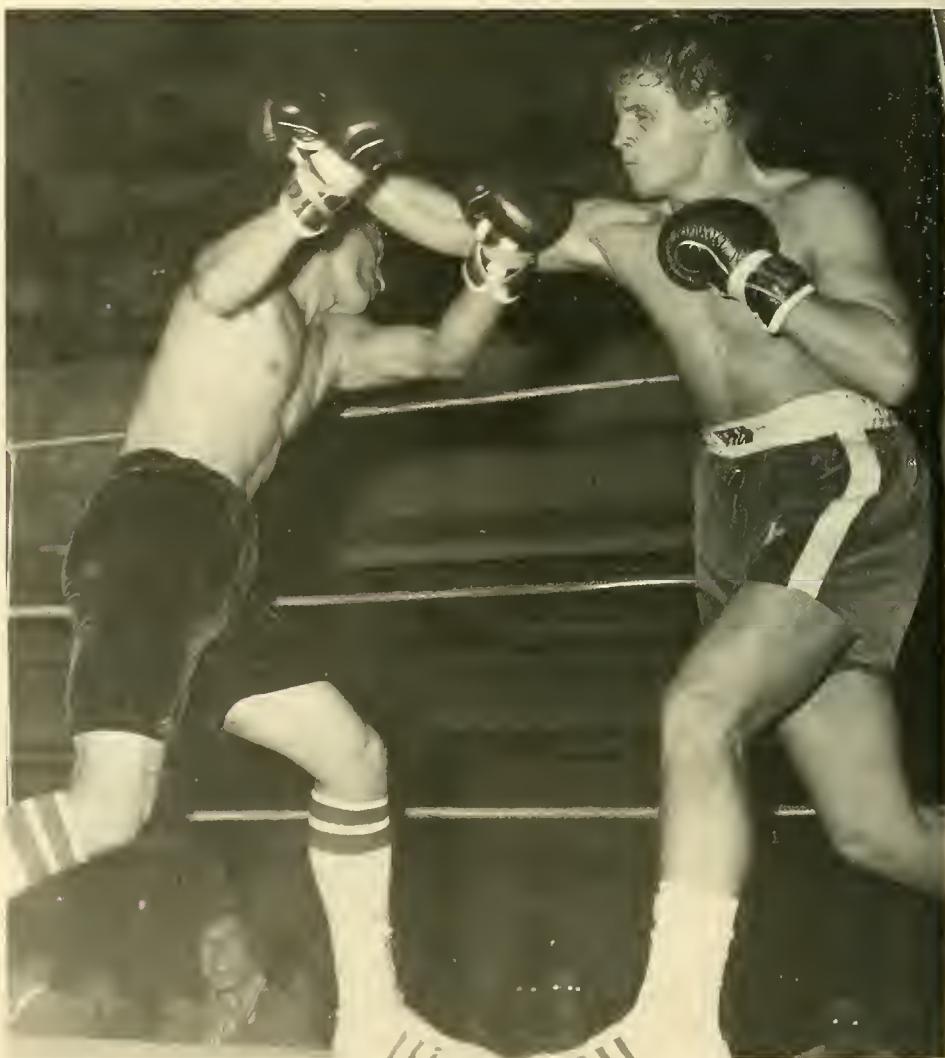

"Sometimes at school, with all the work, I've wished I didn't box," he said, "but boxing's been an education in itself.

"I want people to realize how much dedication boxing takes. Besides keeping up with the study load at school, I've had to miss out on a lot of the fun my friends have had. I know I'd make it if I put that dedication in something else."

Smith knows he's a success in boxing, in the personal sense so intrinsic to the sport. He certainly feels he can put his determination to good use in the business world.

As Vecchione said, "Jackie Smith will be a credit to Boston College because he's a winner, and he'll carry that with him in whatever he does."

[Jackie Smith's] success relies on dedication and sacrifice.'

Jackie Smith lands a right hand during the bout for the New England professional junior middleweight championship in Worcester in 1974. Smith won the decision and the title in what was his first 10-round fight.

Benedict Arnold's finest hour

One of the Revolution's most well-known figures recounts the attack on Quebec, an action that brought him honor and a promotion, as recorded in The American Archives

Brigadier General Benedict Arnold

When fighting broke out with the British in 1775, Benedict Arnold, then a 34-year-old druggist and merchant sea captain, left his New Haven home to raise troops to attack Fort Ticonderoga. After the capture of the Fort, with the assistance of Ethan Allen, Arnold commandeered a schooner, sailed northward, and captured St. John's, just over the border, with a party of 35 men. He was a chief advocate of the Canadian invasion and displayed courage and daring during it. Arnold was a colonel and second-in-command when the American forces under General Montgomery attacked Quebec on Dec. 31, 1775. He described what occurred in a letter dated Jan. 6, 1776.

Before this reaches you I make no doubt you will have heard of our misfortune of the 31st ultimo, and will be anxious for my safety. I should have wrote you before, but a continual hurry of business has prevented me. The command of the Army, by the death of my truly great and good friend, General Montgomery, devolved on me; a task, I find, too heavy under my present circumstances.

I received a wound by a ball through my left leg, at the time I had gained the first battery, at the lower town, which, by the loss of blood, rendered me very weak. As soon as the main body came up, with some assistance I returned to the hospital, near a mile, on foot, being obliged to draw one leg after me, and a great part of the way under the continual fire of the enemy from the walls, at no greater distance than fifty yards. I providentially escaped, though several were shot down at my side.

I soon learned the death of our General, who attacked the town at the side opposite to me; he behaved heroically; marched up in the face of their cannon, and when he had nearly gained the pass, received the fatal shot, or the town would have been ours.

This occasioned the disaster that afterwards happened to my attachment, which, after the General's defeat, had the whole garrison to encounter, under every disadvantage of ground, &c. &c. To return was impossible, as the route was within fifty yards, and exposed to the fire of the whole garrison, who had brought several pieces out of one of the gates, which our people would have been obliged to pass. In this situation, they maintained their ground near three hours; but being overpowered with numbers, were obliged to lay down their arms; about three hundred, including Captain Lamb, of New York, and part of the train, were taken prisoners, and as near as I can judge, about sixty killed and wounded. Captain Oswald is among the prisoners; he was with me in a selected party of twenty-five, who attacked the first battery; behaved gallantly, and gained much honour; the prisoners are treated politely, and supplied with every thing the garrison affords. Governour Carleton sent to let me know that the soldiers' baggage, if I pleased, might be sent to them, which I shall immediately send.

Though the enemy are now double our number, they have made no attempt to come out. We are as well prepared to receive them as we can possibly be in our present situation, divided at a distance of two miles. I expect General Wooster from Montreal in a few days with a reinforcement. I hope we shall be properly supported with troops by the Congress.

I have no thought of leaving this proud town, until I first enter it in triumph. My wound has been exceedingly painful, but is now easy, and the surgeons assure me will be well in eight weeks. I know you will be anxious for me. That Providence which has carried me through so many dangers, is still my protection. I am in the way of my duty, and know no fear.

Promoted to general during the Quebec campaign, Arnold continued a siege of the city until the spring, when his troops were forced back to Lake Champlain. He became embittered against the United States in early 1777, when Congress passed him over to promote five junior generals to major general rank. Married to the daughter of a leading Tory, Arnold was cleared by court-martial of charges resulting from a dispute with civil authorities but then began treasonable correspondence with the British. He was named commander of West Point and intended to betray it for a British commission and a sum of money. Although the plot was discovered, Arnold escaped. In 1781, he led British troops in two raids against Virginia and Connecticut positions before going into exile in England. He died in 1801.

Celebrating the imagination

The tradition of 'realistic surrealism' is an underestimated facet of modern American art

(This article is based on an interview with John H. Baker, assistant professor of fine arts).

When talking about the period 1940-1960 in American painting, most art historians concentrate exclusively on abstract painting. In the courses I've taught on art since 1945, however, I've tried to give at least some attention to the continuation of the tradition known as "realistic surrealism" in which paintings celebrating the imagination are executed in a realistic fashion.

During the past few years, I have become very much interested in a group of American painters who worked within this tradition and combined it with social criticism.

George Tooker, the most famous of these painters, has done a number of paintings, such as Government Bureau (illustrated here as figure 1), that depict characters who appear more than once in the same composition. In Government Bureau, the multiplication of the characters suggests the extreme depersonalization of American society and the inability of most people to individualize themselves in the face of endless bureaucracy.

Seymour Rosofsky, a Chicago painter, is less well known but employs the multiple image with an effectiveness equal to that of Tooker. Rosofsky's Unemployment Official (figure 2) is a frightening labyrinth that hovers between the realms of nightmare and social reality. The painting is a hybrid of surrealism and social commentary, and in this respect, it falls in the same historical tradition as Tooker.

This historical tradition can be traced back to American "magic realism" of the 1930s and 1940s, in which the influence of such European surrealists as Dali was combined with social concerns generated by the Depression and World War II.

O. Louis Guglielmi's Terror in Brooklyn (figure 3) is a work of "magic realism" that the artist intended as an image of the frightening state of affairs in society during the war. This social intention is, however, somehow less successfully articulated than in the works of Tooker and Rosofsky. Terror in Brooklyn thus appears to the spectator as an image whose fascination lies in its mysteriousness.

That the works of Tooker, Rosofsky and Guglielmi can be classed together as surrealist along with the vastly different works of Salvador Dali, Yves Tanguy and René Magritte, reflects the great breadth of surrealism itself. The reason for the variety found in surrealist art is that there is no requirement that its artists adhere to any particular style or "look" in their paintings.

Surrealism was, and still is, more of a spiritual attitude than a school or way of structuring visual patterns of art. This spiritual attitude was conditioned above all by adherence to the writings of Sigmund Freud. Since the beginning of the movement in Paris in 1924, surrealist painters and poets have been primarily concerned with exploring the unconscious.

Basic to the theories of the poet André Breton, who launched the movement in Paris with his Manifeste du Surrealisme, is the belief that what we discover in our dreams and fantasies has a reality that is superior to the commonplace objects and events and the so-called facts of the rational world.

Also in keeping with Freud's ideas, Breton believed that uncensored free associational thought, rather than logic, was the means by which access to interior reality could be willfully achieved. Hence, we find surrealist writers experimenting with automatic writing and surrealist painters applying paint to canvas with complete spontaneity.

The revolutionary character of sur-

Surrealism was, and still is, more of a spiritual attitude than a school or way of structuring visual patterns of art.

realism also had a political dimension. The Europeans in the circle of Breton hoped their writings and paintings would, in the words of Marx, "transform the world" on a social and moral level. Although the surrealists were not successful as a politically active force, the radicalism of their stance was transferred in some cases to their art. Hence, both Dali (figure 4) and Magritte (figure 5) intended their pictures to stand militantly against scientific or naturalistic views of reality, and in so doing, convince the spectator that the world of the imagination is more real than the common sense world in which we were brought up to believe.

Dali's Persistence of Memory (figure 4), with its watches that melt and attract ants, systematically contradicts common sense reality; and yet the meticulous realism of the picture tends to convince the spectator that what he sees must somehow really exist.

Collection, the Museum of Modern Art, New York.

The 19th century poet Isadore Ducasse, known as the Comte de Lautréamont, spoke in one of his works of "a situation as beautiful as the encounter of an umbrella and a sewing machine on a dissecting table." It is precisely this juxtaposition of completely unrelated objects in an unexpected situation that is a fundamental principle of both Dalí and surrealism in general.

Like Dalí, the Belgian painter René Magritte painted many pictures aimed at shocking the spectator out of his habitual way of looking at the world. In Magritte's Personal Values (figure 5) the gigantic objects defy the scale of the natural world, while the background, simultaneously a wall and the sky, contradicts its own identity in a bewildering but dazzling visual pun.

Unlike the surrealism of Yves Tanguy (figure 6), which consists of bizarre objects rather than bizarre juxtapositions, Personal Values may have a social dimension of meaning. The largeness of the objects may be intended as a criticism of their unduly great significance in our personal value systems. If this is so, then Magritte's picture is at least somewhat related to the American "social surrealism" of Tooker and Rosofsky.

Both American and European surrealism are not given sufficient attention in courses on modern art because of the emphasis placed by most scholars on the visual innovations made in the development of abstract art. Since I believe, however, that a painting need not necessarily be innovative in style or appearance to be of considerable human significance, I feel students can benefit from the study of such artists as Tooker and Rosofsky. At the very least, exposure to American surrealism will put students back in touch with their own imaginations and help them to outgrow the conformity needs of their adolescence.

Basketball: The rich get richer

How do you make a great team better? Coach Bob Zuffelato does it by adding three high school All-Americans to the nucleus of a BC team that last year ran to its second consecutive 21-9 record, the Beanpot Championship, the New England Championship, and, of course, a berth in the NCAA Eastern Regional Tournament.

First, that nucleus. Three Boston-area stars who joined the Eagles as freshmen in 1972 and were seen as the key to a return to the glory days of the Bob Cousy coaching era have done their job.

Captain Billy Collins, the 6-10 center who established himself last season as one of the East's leading rebounders, averaged more than 10 rebounds a game while scoring over 13 points per contest. He was named co-Most Valuable Player in the New England Regional Championship Tournament.

Collins' partner as MVP in that tournament was Bobby Carrington, the do-everything player for the Eagles last year. 'Smooth' returns to lay claim to virtually every BC offensive record, including John Austin's all-time scoring mark. The 6-6 senior was named to the first team All-East quintet in '74-'75 and has been picked by several pre-season basketball magazines for All-America honors.

Will Morrison, the third of that Boston Three, could have been the best all-around player on the team last season. Another 6-6 forward, Wil averaged over 17 points and nearly eight rebounds per game.

Junior Mike Shirey has played extensively (44 games in two seasons) and presents Zuffelato with a player who has the talent and experience to lead this ball club. Sophomore John O'Brien is another smooth ball handler and shooter, while classmate Jeff Bailey is a valuable part of the team as a forward/guard swingman.

Now, those freshmen. James Jackson is a powerful 6-4 swingman who played at each position for his Crane High School team in Chicago. Ernie Cobb is a shooting star from Stamford (Conn.) High who will be tough to keep out of the lineup. And 6-8 Tom Meggars, a graduate of Chicago's Prosser High, completes the trio of highly-touted newcomers.

And that's how you come up with a great team that could be even better. For basketball schedule, see Calendar.

Two of the old and one of the new. Rebounding strength will not be one of the Eagles' deficiencies this season, as this view indicates. In pre-season action against Athletes in Action, (l-r) Captain Billy Collins, Wil Morrison and freshman Tom Meggars are in complete control of the boards.

Hockey: A year older and better

The young '74-'75 BC hockey team has grown a year older and Eagle hockey fans are looking forward to a team that could make its way back into the ECAC playoff picture.

Only two seniors graduated from last year's 11-15-2 club, and the 20 lettermen returning to Coach Len Ceglarski will provide an experienced nucleus for this winter's icemen.

"We opened practice with the best enthusiasm we have ever had," said Ceglarski as he began his fourth year as BC coach. "We have a young team that is beginning to mature and their attitude is great. We're beginning to turn the corner."

Goal should be the Eagles' strongest position. Junior Bill Wilkens and sophomore Dale Redmond played well last year behind an inexperienced defensive corps. Freshman Paul Skidmore comes highly-rated and will be trying for a starting berth.

Only Richie Hart was lost to graduation among the defensemen and juniors Dave Annecchiarico, Dan McDonough and Tom Sullivan gained valuable experience last year.

There were plans to try big Bob Ferriter, last year's second leading scorer with 16 goals and 25 assists, behind the blue line and two freshmen may also make a mark on defense. Joe Augustine, a 6-3, 210, Chicago native who played in the Western Amateur League last season and was the ninth-round draft pick of the Atlanta Flames of the NHL, and Jack Harrington, who starred for schoolboy powerhouse Braintree High, should contribute to a revitalized defense.

The forward positions are loaded with offensively-talented players. Veteran Mike Martin (12 goals and 10 assists last year), Joe Fernald, Rob Riley, Jack Lowry and Ed Reardon are ready to fill in for Richie Smith, one of BC's all-time leading scorers who has decided to try out for the U.S. Olympic team and will miss the first part of the season.

Speedsters Capt. Mark Albrecht (12 goals, 10 assists), Paul Barrett (10 goals, 19 assists) and Skip House will lead off at left wing, with freshmen Tim Hanlon and Brendan Glynn, who had 34 goals for Milton Academy, ready to come on the ice. At right wing are veterans Tom Songin (13 goals, 27 assists), Kerry Young, Tim Flynn and John Baier.

The Eagles this year have experienced players at each position, and the freshmen and sophomore mistakes of a season ago should be a thing of the past.

For hockey schedule, see Calendar.

Alumni notes

Members of the Newton College Class of 1974 flank a plaque given in remembrance of the Newton College Community at unveiling ceremonies in the Newton Compus chapel. Left to right are Sheila Meehan, Barbara White, Madeline Sherry and Kathryn Longley. The plaque, entitled 'Leaving' and done by Marianna Pinedo, is a gift of the Class of 1974, the Boston Newton Alumnae Club and the Society of the Sacred Heart.

Catch up on change

Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Hamilton, et al., thought that they had problems coping with America's infancy. In retrospect, one might hold the opinion that they had an easy time of it compared to those of us who are groping our way through our nation's adolescence, a time fraught with all the vicissitudes associated with that most difficult stage of life. Who would have thought, for example, that we would one day look at the Great Depression as "the good old days?"

Saturday, Jan. 17, 1976, is the date of the first Alumni event of the Bicentennial Year. Appropriately, it will be a day-long seminar for the "Caught-by-Surprise Generation" focusing on the problems and challenges of coping with change. Seminar participants will explore such topics as the "midlife crisis," "Future Shock" (though "Present Shock" might be the more accurate term), career changes, new life styles, changing sex roles, altered family patterns, and the post-Vatican II Church.

We are fortunate to have as the faculty for this seminar three of the University's outstanding teachers: Sister Margaret Gorman, RSCJ, professor of theology and education; Cynthia Lichtenstein, professor of law; and John Mahoney, professor of English.

The registration fee for this exceptional program is $14 per person, including lunch. You may write to the Alumni Office, 74 Commonwealth Avenue, Chestnut Hill, MA 02167, or call (617) 965-3360 to request a detailed written description of the seminar and a registration form. The deadline for registration is Monday, Jan. 12, 1976.

Greece trip

The Alumni Association will sponsor another European excursion in April 1976. Greece will again be the featured country.

In 1972, our trip to Greece attracted 172 members. Next year's 10-day trip will make three-day stops on Crete, the island most renowned for its antiquities; Rhodes, the loveliest resort island in the Aegean; and Athens, with its priceless heritage of Western civilization.

The tour will leave Boston on Holy Thursday, April 15, and return on Sunday, April 25. Inter-island flights within Greece will be via Olympic Airways. Our price is $797 per person based on double occupancy.

The price includes: all air transportation, hotel accommodations, breakfast and lunch or dinner, all transfers between hotels and airports, all gratuities and taxes, airport departure fees, and a very attractive flight bag. A deposit of $100 per person will secure your reservation.

Checks should be made payable to Boston College Alumni Association, 74 Commonwealth Avenue, Chestnut Hill, MA 02167. For further information, please telephone (617) 965-3360.

Varsity Club corner

The Club invites all interested friends of BC to send to president Ed McDonald at 140 Brook Street, Brighton, Mass., nominations for the 1976 BC Hall of Fame selections before Feb. 10, 1976.

A sellout crowd of 300 persons attended the Hall of Fame buffet at Roberts Center in October. Recipients Ed Mullowney, Billy Evans, John Fiore and Frank Power each spoke well of his days at BC, while Shawn Sheehy, representing brother Tim, and Mrs. Ross O'Hanley, representing her beloved late husband, did equally well.

Next Club event is the Thomas F. Scanlan Award dinner, scheduled for late January to honor the football team and one of its members in particular. Try to make an appearance, as this is BC's most important athletic dinner. All alumni and their friends are invited.

Club members are asked to send their 1975-76 dues to treasurer Frank Colbert at 12 Jersey Street, Dedham, Mass., before the books close. Dues are essential, please support the Club.

Annual Fund a pace-setter

Under the leadership of the local "Big Three," and several area chairmen in different sections of the country, the 1975-76 Annual Fund is running well ahead of last year's record-setting pace.

General Chairman Paul McAdams, '57, along with FIDES Chairman Sam Church, '43 and Telethon Chairman Ed Zmijewski, '54, has spearheaded the drive to a total of $142,000 collected from Boston College alumni and friends as of October 31. Compared to last year's October figure of $114,000, this represents a net gain of 24 percent in cash receipts.

FIDES Chairman Sam Church

The number of gifts received is up significantly as well, with 2,070 received at press time compared to 1,276 a year ago. This gain of 796 gifts represents a percentage increase of 62 percent.

FIDES, starting approximately one month earlier than last year under Sam Church, shows 59 alumni and friends each pledging a gift of at least $1,000 to the Annual Fund to date. Their money pledge total comes to $82,732, a gain of $9,307 over last year's figure of $73,425. Fifty-three members pledged the latter total a year ago, but this year's roster is all the more impressive since it includes 15 brand new members of FIDES.

Sam and his 50 executive committee men were hard at work to wind up the fall phase of the FIDES campaign before the Christmas holidays. Their final progress report meeting of the season was slated for early December at Alumni Hall.

With the request for assistance from Boston College Clubs around the East has come a host of new workers and pledgors for the Annual Fund. The Annual Fund Committee voted to increase the number of regional telethons held this fall, and the results augur well for the future growth of giving "For Boston."

At press time, nine telethons were completed and had amassed a total of $50,787 in pledges. This includes 1,798 donors, 395 of whom were giving for the first time. But just as important is the corps of new volunteers who have found fun and satisfaction in manning the phones on behalf of their alma mater.

The first Providence telethon comprised two nights under the leadership of chairmen Dick Dimase, '64, and Bob Gunnip, '66. The volunteers made their calls from New England Telephone Company offices in downtown Providence.

The telephone company also provided facilities for the initial Bridgeport, Conn. telethon under the leadership of Dick Dowling, '57. The Buffalo, N.Y. Club, with president George Ginther hosting the initial event, also called from telephone company offices, as did the "established" regionals in Washington, Long Island, Hartford and Springfield.

A complete summary of all the regional telethons will be published in future issues.

Margaret Dever, director of BC's Programs for Women, listens to a discussion during the 'Women and Careers' seminar held Nov. 14, 15 at Alumni Hall. More than 50 women participated in the two-day series of speakers and discussions.

Class notes

Deadline for class notes for the Spring issue of Bridge Magazine is March 1. Please mail your notes, typed and double-spaced, to Boston College Alumni Association, 74 Commonwealth Avenue, Chestnut Hill, MA 02167. Notes must be received by March 1 or they cannot be included in the magazine. Thank you.

15 One hundred thirty-one freshmen enrolled at Boston College in September, 1911. Fifty-nine of this number transferred in September, 1913, leaving 72 that went through to graduation. The career choices of those graduates follow, with the number of classmates still accounted for in parentheses: priesthood, 11 (0); education, 22 (6); law, 7 (1); medicine, 5 (0); and business, etc., 27 (0). The number has been reduced by death, with the exception of three classmates listed as "lost." The above statistics indicate that a graduate has a better chance of meeting classmates at his 25th Anniversary than at his 60th, when he is 82 years old and his legs are older than that. . . . Class Correspondent is Philip J. Bond, 18 Houston Street, West Roxbury, MA 02132.

16 Fred and Ellen Gillis celebrated the 53rd anniversary of their wedding assisted by their children and their 30 grandchildren. . . . Jim and Katherine O'Brien celebrated their Golden Anniversary at BC assisted by their children and 22 grandchildren. . . . Class Correspondent is James L. O'Brien, 41 Pond Circle, Jamaica Plain, MA 02130.

20 Most of the survivors of the Forty Thieves migrate from Boston in the summer, but Jeff Conway left the hills of New Hampshire to come to Fenway Park and root for his old friends — the Red Sox. It was New Hampshire Day and Jeff's town, Claremont, made an excellent showing at the game. The League's best catcher, Carlton Fisk, lives in Claremont. They were happy to advertise that fact. Fenway Park is quite familiar to Jeff. He worked there while attending BC.

Larry Gardner helped him to master the intricacies of the art of playing that well known hot corner — third base. Jeff has the experts teach him. A former wearer of the kilts taught him the tricks of mastering the libation that made Scotland famous. . . . October to May are the great months in Florida. They are delightful seasons in Southwest Africa. If any of the survivors would like a change, please remember the welcome mat is out for you at the home of Dr. Neil O'Connor. Write to Neil and arrangements can be made. Cleo Brawley will be glad to give you the address. Garber's Travel Agency will see that you get there. . . . Phil Bond of the Class of 1915 reports that his class dwindled to seven graduates. From the number of letters bearing news of our class, I wonder if we have seven left. Maybe we have one distinction, i.e., distance. The residence of Dr. Neil — Southwest Africa — is a good challenge to other classes. . . . Have received no news lately from the Duke and Duchess. . . . The Class Notes said that Mr. and Mrs. Frank Earls observed their 50th wedding anniversary. It was their fifth. Just remember the size of that well-known package that many people procure in N.H. . . . Glad to learn that Charles O'Halloran, Ph.D., of the Class of 1915 is alive and well. Worked with Charley in the Boston Meat Market and also in the Boston schools. . . . Have heard from John Doherty of the Class of 1918. . . . On Nov. 7 and 8, 500 members of the 62 Club departed from Logan Airport on our annual visit to Miami Beach. John Doherty is a faithful member of the Club and we hope he comes this year. Fort Lauderdale is not too far from the famous resort of Florida. So we will bring the best wishes of the Forty Thieves to our classmate, Leo Aicardi. We always receive a fitting reception from the former Mayonnaise King from South Boston. George Cary, Phil Mackey, John McMorrow and Leo apparently are the only survivors of the Dorchester Bay Group. . . . John McMorrow is a former president of the South Boston B.C. Club. Forced busing is as popular there as an orange colored tie on St. Patrick's Day. . . . My apologies to Gerry O'Neil, whom Bridge listed as Gerry O'Heil. A heel is not a pleasant name to win. . . . Your next birthday card from the class will be signed, "Mrs. Cleo Donaher." Cleo and Fred Donaher decided that single bliss is not for them. They are going back to the married group. I am not in possession of the date. However, I have been told that the ceremony will be performed at Roanoke, Va. . . . Congratulations and best wishes from the survivors of the Class of 1920. . . . Class Correspondent is Robert Pyne, 29 Presley Street, Malden, MA 02148.

21 Fr. Cletus Mulloy C.P. observed the 50th anniversary of his religious profession in the Congregation of the Passionists by a concelebrated Mass of Thanksgiving in October at St. Gabriel's Monastery Church. Monsignor Mullarkey, who celebrated his 50th anniversary in June, joined numerous other priests on the altar. Included among those who attended the Mass, the reception and dinner were the two sisters of Monsignor Mullarkey, the widow and daughter of Paul Burke, Henry Ford and his sister, Steve Griffin, Ralph Monks, Henry McInerney, Hugh O'Regan, Mrs. O'Regan and their daughter, Mark Russo and his daughter, the widow of Louis Ryan, Judge John Sullivan, your correspondent and Mrs. Mahoney. . . . We extend our sympathies to the sister of Father Cornelius Murray, who passed away in August, to the family of Dr. Vincent Kelley, who passed away on August 4, to Charlie Coyle and his family upon the death of Mrs. Coyle on August 13 and to Hugh O'Regan upon the death of his brother Bill on August 24. . . . Mark Russo is proud to report that two of his grandchildren now attend the University, Susan Devine as a sophomore and Richard Mark Russo as a freshman. Class correspondent is Jeremiah W. Mahoney, 86 Moss Hill Road, Jamaica Plain, MA 02130.

22 It was a pleasure to meet Ray Drugan at the buffet given by the Telethon group at Philomathia Hall on the day of the Tulane game. Ray, double amputee, sitting in his wheel chair, greeted many of his friends, including track teammates on Jack Ryder's club of his era, one of whom being national junior half-mile champion, James Caffrey, George Keefe, Charlie McNamee, John Hall, Walter McSwiney, Fred Donaher and a score of others made Ray's first visit to BC in several years a happy occasion. A card to Ray at Hull Cove, Jamestown, R.I., would be appreciated. . . . Bishop Thomas Riley, a true conservative, is giving his usual excellent advice and opinions in the daily and religious press. He is a really great and scholarly churchman, and his opinions carry great weight both within the church and without. . . . Rev. Charles Eberle, SJ, has retired after 57 years in the Jesuit Order, most of them as an outstanding missionary in Jamaica. He has chosen Falmouth, Jamaica, as his retirement home, and would be happy to hear from his many BCH friends, where he graduated in 1918 after starring on the football field and on the crew, as well as in forensics and in the classroom. No missionary in Jamaica has ever done more for Jamaicans than has Fr. Eberle, whose older brother Fr. George, '05, passed away at BC a short time ago. John Doherty reports an unusually happy trip to Ireland and the British Isles with his son and other members of his family. His brother and sons as well all attended BC or other Jesuit colleges and all have done well and are all very loyal to their alma maters. . . . We sadly report the deaths of two more of our most illustrious classmates, William Canty and Msgr. Cornelius Sherlock. . . . Bill Canty died on Aug. 4 after a distinguished life as a teacher and Superintendent of Schools in Everett. He was highly honored by the Massachusetts Association of School Superintendents and was a leader from his early days in BC High. His son, William P. Jr., is of the Class of '67. Msgr. Cornelius T. Sherlock, Vicar General of the Archdiocese, retired pastor of St. Mary's Parish in Lynn, former Superintendent of the Archdiocesan Schools, and formerly Chairman of the State Board of Education, came to BC from Boston Latin and continued his very brilliant academic career. He had an outstanding life in Church and education. His interest in photography, which featured hundreds of photographs dominated by the studies "Photos by Sherlock" that were a pictorial history of his days on the Heights, continued all his life. Principal celebrant of his Mass was Bishop Thomas Riley, and many classmates attended to extend their final tribute to a great priest. . . . Class Correspondent is Nathaniel J. Hasenfus, 15 Kirk Street, West Roxbury, MA 02132.

23 Another season rolls around and I am still awaiting that first call from one of the classmates with some news of themselves or their families. I do so want to keep our Class in the magazine in each edition. How about a little assistance? . . . Joe Green reports that his wife was quite ill, but is now much better. Believe it or not they have 36 grandchildren and 27 great-grandchildren. Is this the record for the Class? . . . Fr. Norbert McInnis was in the hospital for two months during the summer, but is now feeling much better. He managed two weeks in Florida in October, which has helped him a great deal. Our best wishes to him for a real speedy recovery. . . . Cecil McGoldrick and his lovely wife, Mary, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary by visiting one of their sons in Washington and another in Chicago and then off to the west coast and Las Vegas. This delightful trip was a present from their children. Congratulations Cecce and Mary, may you have many more anniversaries. . . . John Roche reports from Rochester, N.Y., that everything is fine with him and his family. His three sons are in the investment business, two in New York and one in Baltimore. His son George was on national television recently. John is heading for Florida and his yearly sojourn. . . . Louis Tracy says 'Hi' to all his classmates and wishes them the best for the coming year. . . . The sympathy of the Class is extended to Dr. Ed Burke on the death of his wife, Margaret, who had been ill for some time. May she Rest in Peace. . . . Al Schmitz seemed quite well when I talked to him in St. Louis — He did report a son of his had not been well and that he had 3 grandchildren. He sent his best wishes to all the classmates. . . . Joe Comber, Bob Allen, Father Pat Collins, Joe Crane, Ed Dullea and Owen Gallagher all reported they had no particular news, but wished to extend the greeting of a very Merry and Holy Christmas and a Happy and Healthy New Year. Yours truly had a very delightful trip to Europe this summer, going on a Pilgrimage with Cardinal Medeiros to Poland and Rome. My sister and I visited all the Shrines in Poland including Jasna Gora on the 15th of August when 80,000 people congregated to worship at the Shrine of Our Lady, and then all the basilicas in Rome including the monastery on top of Montecassino. Class Correspondent is Mrs. Francis L. Ford, 9 McKone St., Dorchester, MA 02122.

24 After the Miami game a group of 18 gathered at Mill Falls Restaurant for a convivial dinner party. Your reporter thought it a good trick after the treat to expose their self-revelation. . . . John Healey and Marion admit to a siesta every day. They need one. Starting early they do the round of culture until late afternoon. . . . Talking with John Murphy, SJ, who counts leprechauns to get to sleep. Marion's eyes lit to a glow. Before long they were promoting a Class tour of Ireland, races featured. . . . Chris Duncan and Virginia winter in Key Largo and summer at Falmouth. Twelve classmates visited them in September. Seems Chris wanted to build a "widow's walk" on top of the house, which the building inspector vetoed. Alternate strategy: a high ladder built on the side of the house — now Chris climbs to the top rung, sits and reads the newspaper while scanning the horizon for Spanish Galleons. . . . Les Hourigan brings Catherine the paper and breakfast in bed every morning. This fired up the rest of the ladies — On guard men! Always loyal, these two never miss a BC affair. . . . Frank Kelly and Ann, with Lake Worth, Fla. in view, have closed the cottage at Priscilla Beach. Frank champions my league at golf. . . . Walter Carroll and Julia spend the summer at Green Harbor and Marshfield Country Club. . . . Mal Eich lives year 'round in So. Yarmouth.

... Gene Campbell still carries on cheerfully despite operations. An inspiration, he is most interesting, says my wife. . . . Ed Murphy is no help to Helen in the kitchen but is "great with the kids." They had a graduation and a wedding this summer. . . . Your correspondent and Gen gaily trekked thru Switzerland and Austria in September. Gen slipped him two phrases, "Gnädige Frau" and "So ist das Leben, mein Schatz," which won him a universal welcome. . . . Class Correspondent is Joseph L. Tribble, 110 Bay Ridge Lane, Duxbury, MA 02332.

25 Our Golden Anniversary year is now history, but the memories linger on, as evidenced by many letters received, expressing the recurrent theme that the whole affair was really grand and still evokes happy recollections. . . . Several classmates were pleasantly surprised to receive snapshots expertly taken by Hon. Judge John Fitzgerald and Bill O'Brien during the various events of Reunion Week. Letters of appreciation were received from Phil Dillon, Frederick Meagher, Daniel A. Lynch, Esq., Bernard Hawley, Tom McGann and Joe Beattie. Joe has moved from Detroit to Mesa, Arizona, now his permanent residence. . . . Hope that all of you read the recent issue of Focus, which highlighted the Annual Fund totals, with our Class of 1925 having the distinction of leading all classes in the percentage of donors including FIDES, Tower Builders, and McElroy members. Your sacrificial gifts are greatly appreciated by Alma Mater. . . . Sorry to report that James Feeney died in Mid-June, and that James McGuire passed away on Sept. 27. May they rest in peace. Our deepest sympathy is extended to their bereaved families. . . . Inadvertently, Joe Melley's name was omitted from the list of classmates present at the Golden Eagles induction ceremonies May 17. Also, Frank Keane, Howard Healy, Ed Mockler, Ed Hurlburt, Dr. John Collins, Msgr. Joseph Burke, Joe Walsh and Rev. Fr. Leo P. McCauley, SJ, should have been included among those unable to personally attend due to other commitments or sickness. . . . Fr. Leo McCauley, SJ, was in Rome during the month of May. He is presently engaged in retreat work at Our Lady of Peace Retreat House, Narragansett, R.I. Visits from the Greatest Class will be most welcome, he stated, to hear him dispense "Trinitarian and communitarian spirituality a la Vatican." . . . May each of you enjoy a happy and holy Christmas Season. Keep in touch! . . . Class Correspondent is Philip J. Callan, 57 Freeman Street, Auburndale, MA 02166.

26 Gentlemen: The big year we thought we would never see is at hand at last! Fifty years! Wow! And it is up to every living member of the class to do all in our power to make it a memory to brighten our remaining years. We all owe much to BC and without her, we'd have been handicapped in the battle of life, you'll agree. Dig down even deeper for our biggest donations ever this Jubilee year. . . . Our biggest celebration will occur in May and you will be told all the details in ample time for you to plan on being at the Heights. For those of you living away from Boston for years, we guarantee that you'll not recognize the College. It has grown tremendously. . . . We kicked off the 50th with a dinner at Alumni Hall on Oct. 23, for the group close to Boston, and our impressive Fr. Monan was guest speaker; he brought us up to date on the latest developments at BC and the College is progressing steadily. Among those there were, in no special order, Art Murray, Frank "Horace" Greenish, Bill Duffy, Bill Dunn, Frank Repetto (who retires in December from the Boston School system), John Dorsey, Dr. Bob Shaughnessy, Dr. Bob O'Doherty, who came up from the Cape with Larry McCarthy, and Malden Bill Sullivan. J. Murray Regan was there, as were John McElroy, Jim Donnellan, Msgr. Jerry Foley, Art "Red" McManus, Frank Colbert, whose brother George died only this fall, faithful Charley Schroeder, the Dutchman, and Msgr. Matt Stapleton. Ray Scott, who only within the month had lost his son, young Ray, was there, as was a most welcome stranger, Fr. Dick Vahey, O.P., as slight of build as 50 years ago. Judge Charlie Carroll; Frank "Jake" Smith; Dr. Dan Sheehan; Fr. Joe Brennan from Cohasset; Ed Luddy from North Adams; Judge Neil Moynihan; Msgr. Jerry O'Neil (with whom Rose and I had spent a couple of pleasant days in the early fall); Msgr. Henry O'Connell, former Fire Dept. chaplain, little Ed Digby from Gloucester; Ed Lanigan; John Dooley, readying to leave his Plymouth home for his Venice, Fla., pretty home; Joe "Jodey" Hughes who still golfs regularly; Tony Perry, up from Washington; Henry Barry from Long Island, still traveling everywhere, looking great and so obviously enjoying life; Tom Cavanagh, our great miler from North Scituate and Hatherly; and, lastly, our South Yarmouth contingent of Dan Healy (of "Danny Boy" fame), President Arthur Gorman and your humble correspondent also attended. We hope that we've missed no one. . . . A few notes culled recently. Msgr. Mike Costello celebrated his 40th year in the priesthood in September and Fr. Jim Shaughnessy has some eye problems that kept him in Lawrence. Frank "Red" Riha was at the Faulkner Hospital with a kidney operation at the time of the dinner; little Connie Murphy is at Marion Manor; and Fr. George Kilcoyne, SJ, was ill at St. Mary's Hall, although he'd planned to be with us. . . . Art Gorman and Estelle spent a week in London in September, visiting son Arthur. . . . The Cape BC Club had two buses for the Notre Dame game and another for the Miami game; I saw these and got slightly wet at the Tulane game. . . . The plans for May? Arrive May 20, Thursday, to stay in the newest dorms overlooking the Reservoir, the big dinner on Friday, Mass Saturday morning for those not with us, followed by a noon luncheon. On Saturday evening, the Ball, with Sunday for us to be on our own. Sounds great, doesn't it? It'll be great if you are all there, so "Button up your overcoat and—take care of yourself," as that song of the '20s used to say. . . . Before leaving you, I'm grateful to all who drop lines, especially Ray Scott. . . . Class correspondent is William Cunningham, Two Captain Percival Road, South Yarmouth, MA 02664.

27 Members of the Class of 1927 who were students of Joseph Marique, SJ, in 1924 and who took part in the program of the Greek Academy will be pleased to know that a unique scholarly compilation was published recently to honor the erudition and classical research of our beloved former professor of Greek. This work is entitled "Classica et Iberica-a Festschrift in honor of the Reverend Joseph M. F. Marique, SJ." The scholarly theses therein have been written by Fr. Marique's former students, colleagues and friends. Among the contributors are John Cardinal Wright, Rev. Vincent A. Laponarda, SJ, and Walter Muir Whitehill. Fr. Marique can be reached at Le Moyne College, Syracuse, N.Y. Ad Multos Annos, Fr. Joe. Classmate John F. Cavanaugh of Framingham died suddenly last August. John had been business manager of the Framingham schools and was active in the conducting of Framingham's public affairs. He was past president of the Massachusetts Association of School Business Officials. Classmate John A. "Mike" Lynch died last July in Flushing, N.Y. He had retired as president of the John A. Lynch Trucking Co. in Flushing. To the families of these two respected classmates we extend our deepest sympathy. . . . The name Ohrenberger keeps popping up in sports circles. Peter and Paul, twin sons of Daddy Bill Ohrenberger, are leading lights in the Junior 4 Ball Golf League. Bill Ohrenberger III, Daddy O's grandson, is playing defensive end for the current BC Eagles. The sports announcer's voice comes booming over the loud speaker, "tackled by Ohrenberger," and we are transported back in time a mere 50 years. . . . His Honor, John Drummond, Mayor of Amarillo, Texas, was interviewed by Boston Globe reporter Bill Fripp during the National Mayors Conference held in Boston last July. John has acquired a Texan drawl and a great love for the open country of the Texas Panhandle. He finds the City of Boston greatly changed but still a very attractive city whose charms he boasts of to his fellow Texans. . . . Jim and Pat Walsh's recent visit to Washington, D.C., included a visit to the White House. . . . Class Correspondent is John J. Buckley, 103 Williams Ave., Hyde Park, MA 02136.

28 Gene Plociennik, retired educator and collegiate football official, is now back in good shape after having spent some time in sick bay. . . . Fr. Bill Casey, who at one time was the religious superior of the Jesuit Community at Holy Cross, has recently been elected to the same position in the Beirut, Lebanon province. . . . Tony Lipp, so the Alumni Directory reveals, is now a permanent resident of Florida. . . . Ken Minihan, Charles (Sonny) Joyce, Paul McSwiney, Larry Shea and Tom Aglio are other class members who have migrated to the Sunshine State. . . . Jack Ryder, John (Smokey) Kelliher, Mike Drummond and Bill Harrington, if history repeats, will once again spend January and February in the Fort Lauderdale area. . . . Dan Driscoll continues to play an active role in the real estate game as a broker, auctioneer and expert court witness. . . . Jim Duffy, Jack Doherty and your correspondent attended both the Leahy testimonial luncheon and the Notre Dame football game. . . . Please keep sending along your news items. . . . Class Correspondent is Maurice J. Downey, 15 Dell Avenue, Hyde Park, MA 02136.

29 Good news: Frank Haggerty is very much alive and lives at 30-18 Middlesex Circle, Waltham. We deeply regret anguish and concern caused by our erroneous report that Frank had died. It must have been a terrific shock. We cannot recall the source of information. Our deep apologies, to Frank and Mrs. Haggerty, their families and many friends. . . . John and Marion Mahoney have retired to West Roxbury from Montpelier, Vt., where John was legal advisor to the Small Business Administration. Welcome home! . . . Members of the class seem to be keeping busy and healthy. Fr. Leo O'Keefe, SJ, though retired from the BC faculty, is in demand as always as an orator and retreat master. He preached a deeply moving eulogy for Fr. William Keleher, SJ, former president of BC. At half-time of the Notre Dame game, Fr. O'Keefe was the voice of the Bicentennial program. At Commencement, his were those glorious tones rolling across the Heights to announce and introduce the graduates and dignitaries as they filed onto the field. He is at a lot of the athletic and other activities along with President Paul Markey, Johnnie Martin, Joe Birmingham, Ed Murray, Henry Kievenaar, Bill LeFay, Phil Stuart, Fr. Frank Harkins, et al. . . . Frank Cadigan sends his best Indian Summer wishes to all from Brewster on the Cape. He saw Vin Roberts' son Vinnie bring a 90 foot ketch (?) through the Canal from Halifax, N.S., last Saturday. A beautiful sight. Vinnie was in submarines in the Navy and loves the sea and sailing. Lives between Newport and Florida. . . . Interesting that the two priest sons of 1929 are both in South America. Fr. Leo Shea, studying Spanish at the Maryknoll Language School in Bolivia, before reporting to Caracas, Venezuela, dropped by Lima, Peru (can one do that?) to see Fr. Michael LaFay of the Carmelites. . . . George Donaldson, McKenney Award winner in 1974, and wife Genevieve were on tour in Switzerland and the Rhine Valley in September. . . . Please drop a line or two if only to say hello. It can be lonesome being your one-way correspondent. . . . To you all a holy and happy and healthy Christmas. Class Correspondent is Leo C. Shea, 18 Lombard Lane, Sudbury, MA 01776.

30 Mr. and Mrs. William Mulcahy and Mr. and Mrs. Al McCarthy attended the Class' 45th Reunion dinner at Roberts Center last alumni week. The McCarthys also attended the Boston College night at Pops. We are sorry that these names were omitted in the last issue. . . . Congratulations to Dr. and Mrs. Charles Rooney who celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary in October. Charlie and Gertrude are the parents of five daughters. . . . In attendance at the Notre Dame game were Fr. Ultan McCabe, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mulcahy, John E. Hurley, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. John Haverty and Mr. and Mrs. John Dwyer. . . . John E. Hurley, a director of the Bosox Club, attended all the World Series games in Boston and Cincinnati. . . . In attendance at the Boston College Annual Fund reception prior to the Tulane game were Dr. and Mrs. Jim Carolan, J. Redmond Hoban, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hurley, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Rooney, Mr. and Mrs. John Haverty and Mr. and Mrs. John Dwyer. . . . By the time you read this we probably will have had the Class Christmas Party scheduled for Dec. 7 at Alumni Hall. More about this event in the next issue. . . . Class Correspondent is John F. Dwyer, 165 Blue Hills Parkway, Milton, MA 02187.

31 Dudley Walsh is retired from Boston Trade High School. He is able to spend part of each winter in Florida. . . . George Rowlinson is advertising manager for Gorin's, Inc. . . . Paul and Edith Eaton, Ted and Evelyn Cass, Tom and Lillian Crosby, Mike and Elizabeth Curran, Bob and Mary Hayes, Dick and Marion Fitzpatrick, John Carr Mullaney, John and Donna Mullaney, Tom McLaughlin, Francis Curtin, Charles Curtin and Terry Curtin were at the 1931 tables at the last Laetare Sunday Alumni Communion Breakfast. . . . Tom Dolan and son, Michael, were with us the year before, as were John Mullaney's guests, Tony and Mary Anne McLaughlin. . . . John Louis Bonn, SJ, passed away. During our undergraduate days, he was a scholastic, a talented, concerned and compassionate teacher and adviser. . . . Paul J. Eaton, assistant vice-president in charge of labor relations for New England Telephone, has retired after 41 years of service. Paul received his MBA from Harvard Business School. Paul and Edith have seven children: Paul Jr., Ann, Richard, Elizabeth, Robert, Thomas and Gerard. . . . Daniel F. Burns of Cambridge passed away. He was former executive director of the Cambridge Housing Authority. He graduated from Harvard Law School. He leaves his wife, June, and a married daughter. . . . Frank Bertsch lives in a wooded area of New Jersey, 40 miles due west of Grand Central Station, where he can "watch white-tailed deer browsing in back of our mortgage." He and his wife are avid golfers. "We've had fun on golf courses from White Sulphur Springs to Pebble Beach. One of our favorites is Club de Golf de Mexico in Mexico City." . . . Frank "Guy" D'Alelio is professor emeritus, Notre Dame University. His honors read like a page from Who's Who in America. That is not too surprising, since he is listed in this prestigious publication. His memberships range all the way from Phi Beta Kappa to the International Mark Twain Society. . . . John Barry has taken his annual trip to England. He is retired from Pan-American World Airways but flies as much as or more than ever. . . . Charlie and Anne Gallagher spent six weeks in England and Ireland. They have a daughter living and working in London. . . . Ted Cass, class president, has appointed a 45th Reunion Committee: Paul Eaton, Tommy Meagher, Tom Dolan, Tom Crosby, Dick Fitzpatrick. Already planned are a memorial Mass in remembrance of deceased members, a spring reunion dinner, the traditional Laetare Sunday breakfast and Alumni Weekend festivities. . . . Bob Sullivan is president of the Cape Cod Club of Boston College. . . . Charlie McCarthy, Ed Deveney, Paul Eaton and Dr. Ewald Dawson were among those in attendance at the last Cape Cod Club session. . . . Ted and Evelyn Cass attended the Dr. Doyle nuptials in the venerable Georgetown Chapel in Washington, D.C. . . . Class Correspondent is Richard H. Fitzpatrick, 15 Hathaway Road, Lexington, MA 02173.

32 Our deepest sympathy goes to the widow of George Colbert, who died last August after many years of sickness. "Coopie" was formerly athletic director and coach at Franklin High School. . . . Also remember in your prayers the soul of the brother of Mike Vodoklys who recently passed away. . . . Glad to hear Ed Gallagher is back home and recuperating after a severe stroke last spring. Ed must use a wheel chair but gets around some. . . . Fred Meier retired from Bridgewater State College as of June 30, 1975. Fred previously retired as president of State College of Salem in 1970 and since then was a professor in chemistry and education at Bridgewater State. . . . The Class will have two more members in the retired class soon. Bill Calvin is retiring as superintendent of the Canton school system at the end of the school year and Tom Connolly will shortly retire as credit manager of McKesson Wine and Spirits Co. Bill Hurley has recovered from his recent eye operation, but will soon be operated on his other eye. Class Correspondent is John P. Connor, 24 Crestwood Circle, Norwood, MA 02062.

33 The Annual Class dinner was held Nov. 29 at the University Club in Boston. . . . Ray Callen and Ann are the proud grandparents of twins — Mark Andrew and Megan Elizabeth, children of Bob Callen, '64. The twins have an older brother, Brian Joseph, who will soon be four years old. . . . Class Correspondent is James M. Connolly, 10 Pine Street, Belmont, MA 02178.

35 The Class expresses sincere condolences to the family of our classmate, Ed McCoglan, on his untimely death; to Bob Donovan on the loss of his wife; and Bill Greenler on the death of his mother. . . . Best wishes to Henry Sheehan on his forthcoming retirement, and a speedy and complete recovery for Bob Curran and Eddie O'Brien of Quincy, the former and faithful chronicler of our class activities. . . . Congratulations to Patty Murphy of Sacramento, Jack Murphy's daughter, recently a successful CPA candidate; and to Richard, Dick Maloney's son, on his admission to the Massachusetts Bar. . . . Class Correspondent is Daniel G. Holland, 164 Elgin Street, Newton Center, MA 02159.

36 Next up-coming event for our 40th is the memorial Mass and Class Dinner with Father Monan as guest speaker. This will be in February with the specific time and place to be announced. Plan to make it. . . . Fr. Tom Navin, pastor of Sacred Heart in Groton, is celebrating his 10th year in that post. Tom has been very active in town and civic affairs and late last summer attended the Lions International Convention in Dallas, Texas, where he had an enjoyable visit with Charlie Dolan who works and lives in that city (Hey, Charlie: "Write!"). Bill Sbaughnessy is one of Tom's parishioners in Groton. Fr. Amby Flynn has been on the sick-list and by the time this is published we all pray and hope he is 100 percent better. . . . Paul Sullivan, with Mobil for 30 years, 18 of which were in Nigeria, retired a few years ago but returned to the wars and is now with Cargill, Inc., in Sun City, Fla. . . . Frank McCarthy of Dedham and professor of physics at Boston State, recently made a trip west and was captured — or is that captivated? — in Sioux Falls by a great visit with the chief of whatever tribe it is that lives out there now, Msgr. Lou Delahoyde. House Majority Leader Thom as P. "Tip" O'Neill in September was presented the Prime Minister's Medal of the State of Israel for his efforts in supporting the right of Israel to preserve its sovereignty in the Middle East. Frank Delear, public relations director for Sikorsky Aircraft in Hartford, Conn., had a story in the October issue of Yankee magazine on Charles Lindbergh, based on Frank's contacts with Lindbergh over a period of years. . . . Charlie Richardson has retired and he and Eleanor are now living in Duxbury. Charlie had an illustrious career in the food services industry and will keep busy acting in a consultant capacity. . . . Neil Owens, executive vice-president of New York Tel. & Tel. Co. and chairman of the board of directors for New England Tel. & Tel., has also retired and, if I am not mistaken, is living in South Carolina. . . . The response for the request for $10 dues has been excellent — send yours along to Jerry Burke if you have not already done so. . . . The replies to date on Jerry's questionnaire are interesting — you interpret them yourself! Over 50% of you said your political convictions reflect a more conservative nature; 25% more liberal; and 25% the same as when at BC. Practically 100% of you said you were enthusiastic about your job and way of life, and that you anticipated the 40th Reunion. Your faith in the future: 50% enthusiastic, 50% dim. Kids education - again for those who answered: 50% enthusiastic, 50% dim. Opinion of BC today - Right down the middle: 50% enthusiastic, 50% dim!! Opinion of changes in the Church: 23% enthusiastic, 12% indifferent, and 65% dim!! (Of the clergy responding, 3 to 2, dim). If you have not sent in your questionnaire, do so and let's see where '36 stands in '76. . . . Last call for autobiographies. We will be publishing in February, so don't miss out. Send it to Steve Hart or myself. . . . See you at Father Monan's dinner in February. . . . Class Correspondent is Joseph P. Keating, 24 High Street, Natick, MA 01760.

37 Deputy Supt. John Bonner of the Boston Police Dept. retired in July 1975 after a steady rise in rank. Dedicated people like John are a rarity in our times. May he and Della enjoy many years of good health. I do hope that he continues as a professor at Northeastern University. . . . Dr. Mike Frasca and his new bride were married April 10 in Jamaica by our classmate, Fr. Bill Connolly, SJ, who, needless, to say, was most pleased in performing the ceremony for his buddy with whom he has been in constant communication for years. The newlyweds spent their three weeks of honeymoon in Jamaica. Shortly after the Notre Dame game, Andy Dominick was the guest speaker and commentator at the New Hampshire BC Club held in Manchester, N. H. My son, Philip, who resides in Nashua, N. H., is the Sec.-Treas. of that club and reports that Andy looked great. Andy and his wife, Mary, will be moving to Florida in early Dec. He has been director and chairman of the Senior Citizens programs in Manchester. I got a call from Marie Hines, widow of our dearly beloved classmate, Ben. Marie underwent a very serious operation and is still receiving special treatment for her recovery. I am sure that Marie would like to hear from some of the classmates — Her address is 2800 Indian River Blvd., Vero Beach, FL 32960. Apt. 7-P. Rita Ford, widow of another loved classmate, Dr. Fred Ford, is living in the family home at 45 Waban Hill Rd., Chestnut Hill. Rita, also, was recently operated on at St. E's Hospital. She, too, I am sure, would love to hear from you. A first anniversary Requiem Mass was held at St. Ignatius Church on Oct. 25 for Dr. Ford. For those of you who did not see Msgr. Bob Sennott celebrate the Sunday Mass on TV with his boy's choir, try to get his sermon and the poem he read entitled "It isn't the Church — It's You." He was magnificent and we hope that he has many more years in the Vineyard of our Lord. George and Ann Curtin observed their 36th wedding anniversary on Oct. 14. Congratulations — and may you have many more anniversaries. Many thanks to all my wonderful classmates for remembering me during my recent illness. A recent edition of Bridge mentioning my condition brought more cards and calls from Barney McMahon, Red Durkin, Eric Steinholm, Joe Richards and Morris Blitz. Morris is Superintendent of Schools in St. Louis, Mo. Joe Richards reports that he was immobile for two and a half years, but now with an artificial hip, he is back in action again. Joe would like to hear from all, especially F. X. Noonan, T. Gaquin and Jim Jordan. His address is: 8351 N.W. 25th St., Sunrise, FL 33322. Mail any news items you may have to my home address. BC'ing you. Class Correspondent is Angelo A. DiMatta, 82 Perthshire Rd., Brighton, Mass.

39 Most of these notes should have appeared in the Summer edition, but somehow the copy was lost between Framingham and the printer. . . . The Class contributed $11,276 to the 1975 Annual Fund. We had seven Fides and 46 McElroys. . . . Incidentally, Phil Callan, the heart and soul of the Telethon, received his Golden Eagle from Fr. Monan. It would be wonderful if Phil received the McKenney award next June. . . . The following were the telethon volunteers for this year: Al Branca, Jack Flynn, Bill Flynn, Pete Kerr, Jim Lynch, Jack Lynch, Bill McCarthy and George Norberg. These same men have done the calling ever since the telethon began. It is never easy to solicit money, and these Class stalwarts deserve the thanks and admiration of both Class and University. . . . Death continues to deplete our ranks. Since the last notes we have lost two class physicians. Jack Hunter died in September, and Frank Straccia passed away in February. Both were loyal and generous alumni. Larry Harrington died Aug. 1. Like many in the Class, Larry had a brilliant war record, rising from enlisted man to a commission in the Navy, with distinguished service at Guadalcanal and the Marianas. Larry was a member of the Postal Service. Tom Palombo passed away on Sept. 2. Tom gave us many thrills on the diamond, and after graduation, he rose from teacher-coach to director of athletics in the Somerville schools. Our condolences go to the families of Jack, Frank, Larry and Tom. . . . Our condolences also go to Larry and Rita Fitzpatrick. Rita lost her twin brother, Joe, and Larry's mother also passed away. . . . The following Classmates and their wives attended the Class dinner on April 8: Al Branca, Frank Brennan, Art Cox, Jim Doherty, Paul Devlin, Art Dray, Bill Flynn, Jack Flynn, Bill Ford, Bill Holland, Paul Keane, Pete Kerr, Simeon LeGendre, Fred Lotterhand, Jim Lynch, Herb Mallard, Bill McCarthy, Tom McDavitt, Fred McCready, Frank McDermott, Frank Murphy, John G. Murphy, Paul Needham, George Norberg, John O'Donnell, Tom Quinn, Pete Ricciuti, Frank Sennott, Arthur Sullivan, and Bill Wagenbach. The dinner was arranged by our Class President, Jim Doherty, assisted by Jack Flynn and Bill McCarthy. . . . Jim Doherty represented the Class at the Alumni Senate meeting in April. Jack Flynn will represent us next year. . . . Francis X. Murphy lives in White Plains, N.Y., and he is director of patents for Pfizer Industries. Frank and Mary (Noone) have six children: Francis X., Jr. (Providence College); Mary J. (Mount Saint Vincent); Kathleen (nursing at Saint Vincent's Hospital); Christopher; Anne (attending Johns Hopkins); and Timothy (Fordham Prep); Mary and Kathleen are married. . . . Francis X. McBride lives in South Norwalk, Conn. and is manager of personnel relations with Westinghouse Elevator. Frank is also a panel member of the American Arbitration Association. Frank and Mary (Nichols) have four children: Charles F. (BC); Mary F. (Mount Ida); Theresa F. (BC); Eileen F. (attending BC). Those of us who attend the BC football games are grateful to Theresa and Eileen. They have entertained us as members of the wonderful BC Marching Band. . . . The June Commencement saw Dr. Frank McDermott complete 29 years on the University faculty. The June Commencement was especially meaningful for Frank and his wife, since their lovely daughter, Martha, received her degree from the School of Nursing. Frank has been a stalwart of the Class, having served as Class President and Class Correspondent. Frank retired from the Army Reserve with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. . . . Dr. Roy T. Lydon lives in Norwood and practices surgery. Roy is school physician for the Norwood High athletic teams, and he is a member of the Norwood Board of Health. Roy and Ann (Fitzgibbons, RN) have 11 children; Roy Jr. (MIT, Yale Graduate School); Michael (BU); Mary (at Stonehill); Eileen (at Faulkner Hospital School of Nursing); Peter (at BU); and Margaret, Christopher, Kathleen, Nora-Jo, Julia, and Paul (all attending Norwood schools). . . . Francis X. Cuddy and his wife, Eleanor (Collett) live in Jamaica Plain. Frank is practicing law in Boston, and he has had a distinguished career in public service. Frank is the former Commissioner of Assessing in the City of Boston and former Administrator of the Boston Redevelopment Authority. . . . Thomas P. McDavitt lives in South Weymouth and is an attorney and accountant. Tom has retired as chief, State Inheritance Tax Bureau. Tom and Gail (Cronin) have five children: Thomas S. (Norwich); is married with two children; Susan B. (Aquinias Junior College); J. Thaddeus (Holy Cross) is a Lieutenant in the Army; Joseph W. (attending Suffolk University); Mary M. (BC and University of Chicago) is married with two children. . . . Nelson F. Erickson lives in Rockville, Md., and he is a safety manager of the U.S. Department of Transportation. Nels is also secretary of his county cerebral palsy association. Nels and Jane (Hayes) have four children: Ruth G. (Newton College) is married; Nelson F. III (attending BC); David (attending junior high); and John C. (attending elementary school). . . . Joseph W. McCarthy lives in Blue Point, N.Y. Joe recently brought distinction to the Class when Farther Monan included him among the first graduates to receive the Alumni Association Awards of Excellence. Joe's latest book on President Kennedy, Johnny, We Hardly Knew Ye, which Joe wrote with the collaboration of several members of the Kennedy staff, has been a best seller. . . . Paul Devlin, professor of accounting at the University, recently conducted a seminar on "Capital Management in Recession" at a national meeting of the Associated Suppliers' Council in California. . . . We bring to your attention the fact that Classmate Jack Sullivan has opened a second Charlie's Eating and Drinking Saloon at the Chestnut Hill Shopping Center, a five-minute drive from the Heights. Cocktails and dinner at Charlie's is an ideal way to top off attendance at a cultural or athletic event at the University. . . . A Classmate would like to contact Fred Tyrrel. Can anyone help us to locate him? . . . Frank Brennan, president of the Union-Warren Bank, has added another feather to his outstanding banking cap. Along with Mayor White, Frank opened the bank's new building at 133 Federal Street, a building built under Frank's direction. . . . Congratulations are in order for several alumni: to Eddie Miller for making such a great improvement in Bridge and other University publications; to Al Branca for arranging the BC-Notre Dame lunch in honor of Coach Leahy. It is a pity the coach could not have lived to see the two Universities, which he served so well, breaking bread together and competing at Foxboro. . . . In reading the Class Notes, have you noticed how many of the Class kids have elected to attend BC? We must have been successful in convincing them that we received an excellent education at the end of the long trolley ride to Lake Street and the long trudge up Chestnut Hill. . . . Class Correspondent is Frederick A. Norton, 29 Berry Street, Framingham, MA 01701.

41 Arthur "Ike" Jones, now retired, is general chairman of our 35th anniversary celebrations. Ike, who recently enjoyed sailing in the Caribbean, was on hand for our very successful reunion dinner at Alumni Hall in October with 50 happy classmates in attendance, as well as some of our former Jesuit teachers whom we were delighted to see. We were, indeed, fortunate in having Fr. Monan as our principal speaker. His words proved most heartening in regard to all aspects of BC's future. Among those present for the dinner were Bishop Joseph Maguire and Monsignori Thomas Finnegan, John Connor, and John Kinchla. Fr. Simeon Saulenas of the Immaculate Conception Church, Cambridge, was also part of this memorable evening filled with meaningful toasts for an even brighter future. And the man who did so much to make it all come true was Chairman Fran Blouin of Belmont. Our thanks for a job well done, Fran! . . . Congratulations are due Tom Galligan, president of Boston Edison, for his appointment as chairman of the BC Board of Trustees. . . . Accolades to Fr. J. Joseph Murphy, a colonel in the army since 1949, for having been made Commandant of the Army Chaplain Center and School at Port Wadsworth, Staten Island, N.Y. . . . It was nice to see Dick Daley, class treasurer extraordinary, back in the middle of the action after recovering from another surgical job on his leg. . . . And wasn't Paul Jennings, one of our distinguished bachelors, the picture of health after his long stretch of illness? Brendan Crotty, M.D., is the physician for the Boston Patriots. . . . And, did you know that Fr. Saulenas is a veritable treasure house of Lithuanian history? . . . Bob Rados, writing from Washington, D.C., says he was sorry that he could not be in Beantown to help with the planning of our 35th; he, however, attended the Notre Dame-BC game. One of our class scouts reports that Bob recently was in Austria. . . . John Roak, Esq., of Hillsborough, Calif., writes that he and his wife make an annual trip to Ireland. The Roaks have eight children, ages 13-27; the oldest is a helicopter pilot in the Corps and, after Vietnam, the Corps sent him to Law School; he has just completed his first year. John adds that he has been practicing law for 20 years; he started an evening law school four years ago and it's growing, and that's what keeps him so busy. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Sliney of Framingham have ample reason to be proud. Last June, three of their five children received advanced degrees. Robert Jr., '71, and a former army lieutenant, was awarded a M.B.A., cum laude, from Notre Dame University. He was given the Dean's Award after having been selected by his peers and faculty for having done most for the class in and out of the classroom. He has accepted a position with the public accounting firm of Cooper and Lybrand and will work the Chicago office. Susan Sliney received a degree from Framingham Union Hospital School of Nursing; she is now working on the staff of McLean Hospital, Belmont. Deborah Sliney was the recipient of a bachelor's degree, cum laude, in business education from New Hampshire College; she has been elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Debby is now a faculty member of the Farley Middle School in Framingham. Bob, himself, deserves a big applause for his exceptionally fine work as a fund raiser during the BC Telethons. . . . Paul True has two sons enrolled in BC; Paul Jr., is a senior, College of Arts and Sciences (pre-law); Michael is a junior in the School of Management. Another son, Mark, is a freshman, University of Massachusetts; he will transfer to the Heights next year. And that's a lot of BC in one package! . . . Dan Regan's youngest son, Dave, has won a four-year scholarship to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. Dan is probation officer, Superior Court, Middlesex County, Cambridge. . . . Frank Hegarty's son, Francis Jr., is a graduate of BC; he is now president of a mortgage bank. . . . The class was very much saddened upon notification of the death of Paul J. McCabe. Paul held an A.B. and a M.B.A., which he received in 1960 from BC. At the time of his death on Sept. 21 (after a long illness), Paul was manager of fiscal operations for the McDonnell Douglas Automation Co. He leaves his widow, Edith, of Huntington Beach, Calif., and six children: Peter, '67, earned a Ph.D. (Northwestern), and is assistant professor of economics, Northwestern University; Mary Ann is a graduate of Mount Saint Mary's College, Los Angeles; Patricia '71 (Lone Mountain College, San Francisco); Gerard, '73 (U.C.L.A.), and now a student in the graduate program of Public Administration at California State Univ., Los Angeles; Christopher is a student at the University of California at Irvine; and Paul J. Jr., is a student at Golden West College, Huntington Beach. . . . Other members of our great class who have died recently are John C. Burns, D.M.D. (April 2, 1975); Brother Peter Claver Racine, S.C., G'41 (April 20, 1975); and Thomas F. Sheeran (March 19, 1975). To all the relatives and friends of these outstanding members of the class, we extend our sincere sympathy. May their souls rest in peace! . . . The class also wishes to express its condolences to Fr. Luke Farley, pastor of St. Helen's in Norwell, upon the death of his dearly beloved mother, Charlotte Farley, who died July 3. May her soul rest in peace! . . . In closing, I just want to say thank you to everyone who contributed to these notes. A super-anniversary year to all! . . . Class Correspondent is Edward J. Burke, 20 Ravenswood Road, Waltham, MA 02154.

43 The belated condolences of the class are extended to Bob Killoran on the death of his mother. . . . Congratulations to Joe Dinneen on his move up to associate editor of the Boston Globe. . . . In a recent note Fr. Gene McKenna, SJ, tells us that after 28 years in parish work in the deep south, he has now moved north to Washington, DC, where he is a hospital chaplain while residing at St. Cyprian's church. . . . Seen at the Leahy lunch which preceded the Notre Dame game were Joe Repko and Wally Boudreau representing the squad, while spotted around the floor were Dick Schoenfeld, Sam Church, John Logue, Ed McGilvry, Tom Kennedy, Bob Butler, Tom Murray, Paul Healy, John Day. . . . Spotted at The Game that night were John O'Donoghue, Jim Grimes, who came down from New Hampshire with a bus load of fans, Sam Losocco, and Jack Kelleher (the CBA boys from Newbury street will recall his famous Ford touring car!!) and probably many more we missed in that great crowd. . . . Word has it that Sam Church is doing a fabulous job as chairman of the FIDES Committee. . . . Much in the news these days is Frank Power, Headmaster of Charlestown High School, and congratulations to Frank on his election to BC's Hall of Fame. . . . Your correspondent invites news notes from all classmates. . . . Class Correspondent is Tom Murray, 14 Churchill Road, West Roxbury, MA 02132.

45 We had a great day a few months ago at Bill Cornyn's Cohasset Golf Club with cocktails at Bill's summer home in Scituate and dinner at Hugo's. Present were the Leo McGraths, the Jim Keenans, the Carl Valentines, the Lou Sorgis, the Jack Currys, the Bill O'Sullivans and the Bill Cornyns. We met again at Harwichport and played golf at Cranberry Valley. The Currys hosted a cocktail party at their summer home in West Harwich followed by dinner at Wychmere Harbor Club. In addition to the above named classmates, the Dave Careys, Frank Tracys, Bill Hamricks and Jack McCarthy joined us. . . . John J. Campbell has been serving as President of Charlesbank Trust for several years. . . . Fr. Patrick J. Kelly was installed as pastor of Saint Mary's in Lynn recently. . . . Your correspondent became a grandfather in October; a boy, John V. Curry III. His father is a member of the Class of 1968 and Brian Curry the Godfather, a member of the class of 1971. Mike Curry, the last of our three boys, recently joined our Insurance Associates Insurance Agency in Medford, Mass. as a life insurance specialist after graduating with the 1974 SOM class at Boston College. . . . 47 A frightening auto crash had us very concerned for a long while, but Jack Harvey is now back at his desk as Registrar of Middlesex Probate Court. Souvenirs of the near tragedy are two plates and 11 screws. Golf? Of course. Jack played this summer at Oyster Harbor, Osterville, on old Cape Cod. . . . Congratulations on two counts to Tony Abruzzese of Jamaica Plain. As principal at the Bowditch School, he is dispensing both education and discipline which, in case you haven't heard, is quite an achievement in Boston these days. Also, he has received the award "Academician in the Papal Academy." Incidentally, academicians seem to run in Tony's family with sons at University of Mass. and Citadel, plus a daughter headed for the Heights. Class Correspondent is a lonely occupation. 49 Several of our classmates are very much involved in the Boston School busing situation. Bob Murphy has just been appointed acting principal of Charlestown High School. His even disposition and calm temperament referred to in the yearbook will be helpful in his new assignment. John McGourty, champion golfer of the 25th golf tournament, is community superintendent of an area that extends from Roxbury to Charlestown. Your correspondent is principal of the Edwards Middle School in Charlestown. Bill Hart and John Bradley are principals of elementary schools in Dorchester. . . . Of social interest, Peter Rogerson, chairman of social affairs, in his true administrative skill, has appointed Ed Murphy to head up a spring social. Ed will be sending out details as they unfold. . . . Time works in strange ways, to wit: Several of our classmates have sons and daughters at BC who, coincidentally, have met each other at social events without any pre-knowledge of their parents' affiliation. I know that Bert Hanwell's son, Joe Hopkins' daughter, Al Smith's son, Peter Rogerson's son, and John Prince's sons and daughter have all met socially at one time or another. . . . We are very happy to report that Bill Harney's wife, Dot, and Bill Abely's wife, Dolly, have recovered from surgery and are feeling much better. Bill Harney was Mister BC in 1949, and is still Mr. BC in 1975. He has given much of himself to our Alma Mater. . . . Class Correspondent is John T. Prince, 64 Donnybrook Road, Brighton, MA 02135.

51 The first social event of the 25th Anniversary Year was a most successful Reunion buffet dinner at Lantana's before the Notre Dame game. More than 200 classmates and guests attended. Future Class events include: Buffet Dinner, B.C. vs. U. Vm. hockey — Jan. 23; Reunion Dinner Dance — late winter; Laetare Sunday Communion Breakfast — March 28; Golf Tournament — spring; and Alumni Weekend — May 20-23. General chairman for the Anniversary Year is Jim Derba. Social Chairman is John Bacon. Class Gift Chairman is Bob Cochran. Area coordinators are: Michael McGoldrick, Lexington, Belmont, Arlington, Melrose; John Bacon, Dedham, Canton, Norwood, Dover, Medfield; Maurice Downey, Cape Cod and South Dartmouth; Francis Gorman, Wellesley, Needham, Weston and Newton; George E. Lonergan, Andover, Billerica, Burlington, Woburn; Richard Savage, Peabody, Salem, Danvers; James P. 53 Met with Jim and Mary Livingston at the BC High freshmen orientation day Mass. Young Jim Livingston will be BCH '79 — His classmate is Gregg Kelly, son of yours truly. . . . Received a few notes from missing buddies. . . . Tim Daly of 281 Broad Street, Weymouth, has been granted a sabbatical leave of absence from his teaching duties in that city. This year he will be working out of Syracuse University as a curriculum implementation specialist. He will be part of a team of 10, working in the areas of science and social studies. Concurrently, he will be pursuing course work toward a degree of C.A.S. in Science Ed. as well as his certification as a supervisor in New York State. Upon completion of the program in May, 1976, Tim will return to the Weymouth school system. . . . A whole gang from '53 are down in the Holbrook, Mass., area. George and Gloria Murphy, after living in Brockton for some eight years, are now winding up their sixth year in Holbrook. The Murphys have five little eagles ranging from 14 to eight. George is vice-president at Knapp — King Size Corp. in Brockton. I believe Knapp Corp. is in data processing. George, I understand, has been kept pretty busy evenings also, having just completed a three-year term on the Holbrook School Committee (chairman in his third year) and is now starting a three-year term on the Town finance committee. (Note: I know just what George is up against, as a Finance Committee member in the town of Watertown many years myself, chairman for the last five, there's not many hours left in the day. P.S. George, I'm first vice-president of the Massachusetts Association of Finance Committees and hope to meet up with you at one of our association meetings.) The Murphys have also been joined in Holbrook by Atty. Ted Mankus (10 more little eagles) and the Dick Buckleys. 55 A big meo moximo culpo for having missed the last issue of Bridge. Things were a bit on the hectic side here. I regret I didn't play roving reporter at our 20th. My original idea was to have circulated a "Let's bring ourselves up to date book" for use in the column but figured in the end, the Champagne dinner dance was not the correct setting. Maybe something like this could be prepared in advance of our 25th and be a part of those festivities. Think about it. . . . The reunion events were fun and we missed those not there. Jackie Dursin Gannon brought her very attractive daughter to Pops where I also had a chance to gab with Clare Cummings Devine and her husband Ed. If I continue to name names, I'll miss someone so I'll stop. . . . Belated congratulations to John Johnson and Winifred Ryan for having been elected to the Alumni Board of Directors. . . . Someone finally heard my pleas for news. Walt Bankowski dropped me a card from Palma. He is a commander in the Navy and is attached to the USS Forrestal as weapons officer. His wife, the former Janet Aucoin (Grad School '55) was able to spend the time in Palma with him. Thanks, Walt. Keep me posted! . . . I'll end this column on the subject of life — new and transformed. The new life is Paul Joseph, born in July to Mary Jane Brennen Geis and her husband Greg. Paul is number five. It is with sadness that we acknowledge the transformation of Mary Monahan Sylvester's life. Mary died in St. John's the Virgin Islands, in October. 70 A little note from Bill Fischer, but secretly written by his wife Wanda, brought word of the whereabouts of the members of the old singing group Bill, Bob and Carol. Bill is just starting medical school at UMass in Worcester, while Bob Hendlar is an intern in Dallas and Carol Bregar is a nurse at the New England Medical Center in Boston. No one is sure why they all went into the same line, but I assure you that more mention of these madrigallers manifested motion to the medical milieu is on my mind. . . . A couple of other medicos among our class are Hugh Flanagan and Jim Brennan who pulled down their M.D.'s last spring from St. Louis U. and New Jersey College of Medicine and Dentistry, respectively. . . . One last note in the medical field, Kathleen Flynn is now an assistant professor of nursing at UMass and living in nearby Chicopee. . . . Enough already with the white coat set. . . .

While down on the Cape recently I stopped in at the Cape Cross Roads Condominiums where sales manager Kevin Ahern gave me the grand tour. 74 Two letters from Africa highlight the column this time — both from Rick Breen.

Rick, a math/pre-med major and trumpet player in the band, joined the Peace Corps in June, 1974. He is in Bassar, Togo, West Africa and teaches math. His French must be excellent by now as classes there are conducted in French. Rick plays basketball for recreation and coaches both boys' and girls' teams at school. He also organized a town team and functions as a player/coach. He was, however, recently sidelined with a fractured hand and so is doing more coaching than playing. Rick feels life is interesting and different in Togo — he is involved in a battle with the ants "to decide who really wants to live in [his] house most." He encourages friends to write; his address is Rick Breen, B.P. 34, Bassar, Togo, West Africa. . . . Rick also reports that Pam Lake taught English in Tunisia as a Corps volunteer. . . . Eric Myers writes that he went into the Navy's officer program at Pensacola, Fla., in October, 1974, and was commissioned an ensign in February, 1975. At the time of his letter, Eric was stationed at Lowry AFB in Colorado learning to be an intelligence officer. Eric also writes that he married Lisa Ford, '75, in Philadelphia in May. . . . Jere Nolan is now in the corporate finance department of the brokerage firm of Blyth Eastman Dillon & Co. in New York and notes that former basketball teammate Mark Raterink is attending Boston University Medical School. . . . While BC lost in football at Syracuse this year, the school did have at least one rooter in the Orangemen's ancient stadium. Linda Chatalian is completing her graduate studies in speech pathology there and in spite of having been a graduate student at Syracuse for more than a year is still all for BC. . . . Linda writes that Tom Mullen has been traveling since graduation. Tom visited and worked in Europe and toured parts of the African continent earlier this year. His present whereabouts are unknown. . . . Following the traveling urge, Michael Rafferty took a two-month leave of absence from work and began traveling cross-country in his silver Vega. 'Coach' Rafferty had one passenger — a dog named 'Charlie.' He began his travels with Charlie in September. . . . Ensign Brian K. 'Gig' Michaud joined the Navy in September, 1974, and became an aviation officer candidate at Pensacola, Fla. He trained there for 17 weeks under tough Marine Corps drill instructors and was commissioned in January of this year. Having soloed in June, he is now stationed on the USS Holden in Newport, R.I. . . . Barry and Denise (Sullivan) Mullen, '75, were married in June in New Jersey. The couple resides in Boston where Barry is employed by Dorchester Savings Bank in management training and Denise is a marketing representative for Proctor & Gamble. . . . The following note was delivered to this correspondent from Kathy O'Leary: "The people I know from BC are the local variety of commuter who hung around the heart of commuter country — the coffee shop in Lyons. Elvie D'Angio is a mental health worker at Waltham Hospital. Her job involves voluntary patients and she very much enjoys working in programs to help these people. Charlene Delena is working at Logan Airport where she sometimes see friends from BC. She has also become an avid photographer (and Kathy think she's quite good). Char had an operation this summer, but is feeling fine now. Joan Cutuli is my (Kathy's) roommate on Comm. Ave. and works for Allyn & Bacon publishers. She is an active member of "Women in Publishing," a division of "9 to 5" working to improve fair and equal employment rights in the publishing industry. Martha Glennon, another roommate of mine (Kathy's), is a nurse with the Boston Visiting Nurse Association for the neighborhoods in South Boston. She vacationed in Rome and also spent a month in the British Isles, mainly Ireland, this summer. Mary Garaghan accompanied Martha on the vacation. She is working at Tufts Medical Center with children with orthopedic problems. She still lives in South Boston and sees many friends from BC. Maureen O'Brien is in Vista somewhere in Oklahoma setting up tutorial programs in English for deprived children. We all wish her lots of luck in her work. Phil Fulchino can be found in his Alfa Romeo somewhere between Revere and Rhode Island where he is doing graduate work in English. Bob Peluso is also in his second year at URI. Peter Dauskewicz is the manager of an ice cream parlor in West Roxbury and looks forward to law school in another year or so. Michael Fazio is at BC doing graduate work in history with an eye toward going to law school also. Craig Murphy is living in Needham and is in his first year of law school at Suffolk. I know he'll do well although you and I know how miserable first year can be. Congratulations to Bill Sheehan on his marriage this summer to Margie Wallace, '73. They are doing well and would like to hear from their friends. John Tirrell has recovered from a neck injury and he and his wife Anne Marie Marangi, '73, and daughter live in Amherst, where he is a teaching fellow in chemistry. As for me, I can always be found on the third floor of the Law Library out at the Newton Campus — falling asleep over my tax assignments. Take care. Kathy O'Leary." . . . Other classmates in second year at BC Law include Ted Basset, John Coletti, Len DeLuca, John Dunn, Joel Fishman, Richard Fitzgerald, Jim Hamrock, Jim Hanrahan, Jim Harvey, Tom Holland, Mark Kelley, Jim Laughlin, Chris Mehne, Chuck Meyer (who recently married Jackie Connor), Steve Nadeau, Bob Perry, Mike Puzo and Ron Weiss. . . . Mike Lupica has left Boston and a globe-traveling free-lance status to take a position with the sports department of the New York Post. . . . Your correspondent attended the wedding of E. G. LeBre and Diane Kenney, '73, recently. The wedding held special significance for me since E. G. is one of my former roommates and the two met while working with me on the staff of the 1973 Sub Turri. Among other Sub Turri staff members in attendance were Peter Vidi, now sales manager of Southeast Realty Co. in Washington, D.C. and Ron Kowalski, an accountant for Stone and Webster engineers in Baltimore. John O'Donnell was also in attendance and he is enrolled as a grad student in economics at University of New Hampshire. . . . In response to many requests, there are still a few copies of the 1974 Sub Turri available. To obtain one, write Sub Turri, Boston College, Chestnut Hill, MA 02167. . . . I'm now in my second year at BC Law and was very fortunate to spend the summer as a clerk in the law offices of Converse and Morell in Palmyra, N.Y. 75 Hi gang! Can you believe we're already alumni? Realization didn't hit until I visited some of my old "haunts" at the beginning of the school year and discovered that even in a brief three months I had changed from being a student "belonger" to an alumni "visitor." I saw many alumni over the summer, especially at the Gold Key barbecue held at Haley House in August (and, in a sense, this column may turn out to be the "Gold Key edition" of the class notes!). A lot of "ex-Keyers" have gone on to law school: Ellen Mayoue is at Albany Law School; Seb Giuliano went to Catholic University Law School; Joe Lavergne, besides being manager of Xerox Dept., is attending Harvard Law School; Mary Healey is down at Georgetown; Sam Galbo is at BC Law and so is Jim Moran, our former UGBC President. He's also an RA this year. Fred Todd is all the way out at the Univ. of Calif. Law School at Berkley. . . . On one of my jaunts up to BC, I visited the new language lab and found someone else in our class who had taken over my job. She's Anne Healy, and besides being a graduate assistant in the Language Lab, is at BC Grad School working on her M.A. in French. . . . Some '75 grads who went to med. school: Claudia Emmert's at Harvard, Liz Regan is at UMass, Amherst, Chris Rynne's attending John Hopkins and Charlie Conlon is at Georgetown. . . . I've bumped into Jack Zarkauskas on my way to work a few times. He's still working and living at the Jesuit Seminary Guild and the last I heard was planning on taking his CPA exams in November. . . . I went to Bruce Showstack and Bonnie Orlick's (Class of '76) wedding in August. They had a very nice ceremony and reception at Sidney Hill County Club. After honeymooning in Bermuda, they're now living in Chestnut Hill. . . . Margie Wallace and Bill Sheehan (Class of '74) were married last June. They spent their honeymoon in the Pocono Mts. and are now living in Readville. Margie's still working as a waitress in Needham while looking for a teaching or translating job. . . . Mary Ellen Harrington and Mark Ryan are engaged but haven't set a date yet as Mark is presently unemployed. Things are really tough all around. . . . I've seen Urs Nager a few times. He's presently looking into the possibility of engineering school. . . . "Airborne" Rich Comerford is on a three-year tour of duty in Baumholder, Germany, and Bill Kane is in the US Marines. . . . Kel Terraga is one of the "fortunate" who got a teaching job. He's teaching English at Norwood High School. . . . Jim McVane is at Northwestern Law School. . . . Other grad school goers: Mike Roye is at UPenn studying urban planning; also at UPenn for his MBA is Don Russo; Gathy Kuchinski and Dan Melville are both at BC Grad; Carla Suetta is at Rutgers and Mary Mills is at Simmons studying library science. Two accountants: Joseph Renton is at Touche and Ross in NY and Bob Ainsworth is at Coopers and Lybrand. I hear that Cliff Myatt is driving a mighty nice-looking Porsche and is working for General Tire in Framingham. . . . Pat Kavanaugh's working as a public health nurse in Wayland. . . . Barbara Mento is doing actuarial work in the Pension department of Marsh-McClenan Ins. Co. . . . Marilyn Kullman is working as an assistant to a physical therapist and Clare Chapin is working for the U.S. Social Security Department. . . . Regina Smith got a job as a junior economic analyst at Eastern Gas and Fuel Association, a Boston-based diversified energy company. . . . The yearbook staff has asked me to inform you that there is still a limited supply of the 1975 Sub Turri as a result of a second printing last June. If you would like to have a copy, please forward a check for $15 plus $1 for postage and handling to Sub Turri, c/o Boston College. . . . Yours truly is working as a pensions analyst for New England Mutual Life. Hope you'll all write and don't hesitate to call or stop in and visit whenever you're in the area. Newton College faculty notes

Dr. Ubaldo DiBenedetto, currently a faculty member in foreign languages at BC, directed two productions of Neil Simon's Last of the Red Hot Lovers in Cohasset, Mass., in November. . . . Dr. Marian Kilson, formerly of Newton's sociology department, has been named a "scholar" at the Radcliffe Institute, and first director of research there. . . . Dr. Charles Botticelli, previously director of the division of science and math at Newton, is a lecturer in general education in biology at the extension program at Harvard University. . . . Dr. Mary McCay, a member of Newton's English faculty for six years, is currently working on an anthology of American literature. . . . (Dr.) Sister Margaret Gorman, who holds a psychology fellowship at BC, is working on a research project at Harvard, funded by a Kennedy grant. . . . Drs. Kilson, Botticelli, McCay, and Gorman, along with several other former Newton College faculty members were also among 16 professors offering courses this fall under the auspices of Boston College's Programs for Women, directed by Margaret Dever, formerly director of continuing education at Newton. Dr. Kilson was co-leader of a seminar entitled "The Way We Are: American Culture in Transition"; Dr. Botticelli held a seminar in genetics and genetic engineering for the concerned non-scientist; Dr. McCay led a group in a study of novelist Virginia Woolf; and Sister Gorman was one of three instructors in a seminar on "Coping Styles at Life's Turning Points." John Philibert, formerly of Newton's art department, assisted Sister Gorman in her presentation; and led a seminar which utilized readings, music, and the visual arts to help participants discover and accept their own individuality. Critic of the arts and former Newton faculty member Jane Appleton was one of six panelists in a seminar entitled "An Intellectual Check-up"; and (Dr.) Sister Catherine Maguire, a professor of English at Newton for many years, led a seminar exploring the views of six novelists who have taken up the problem of the "normal" character in "abnormal" circumstances. Finally, Dr. Marie McHugh, former professor of history and humanities division director at Newton, and currently associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at BC, served as instructor in a seminar entitled "Critics of Society: Western Civilization in Analysis."
